Social Trust Toward A Cosmopolitan Society:

Social Trust Timothy Earle, George Cvetkovich, 1995-07-24 This work examines the basic social psychological problems that generate the need for social trust and other acculturation strategies Social trust is examined within the context of competing social problem solving tools The authors analyze the problem of how social trust can be encouraged within a cultural context that favors other socialization strategies particularly distrust They look at the relation between social trust and risk communication specifically how social trust might be used to transform public participation from an ineffective formalist show into a creative community building problem solving process The work distinguishes between two forms of social trust pertinent to our world today pluralistic which occurs within groups and is based on existing values and cosmopolitan which is an across group phenomenon and is based on emerging values Earle and Cvetkovich's study is the story of gradual movement from pluralistic to cosmopolitan social trust

Social Trust and the Management of Risk George Cvetkovich, 2013-12-16 Social trust is a crucial issue to many aspects of modern society Policy makers continually aspire to winning it and corporations frequently run the risk of losing it The trust deficit raises vital questions and problems to which until recently there have been few answers or solutions Experts from both sides of the Atlantic explore the importance for trust of various influences from individual perceptions to organizational systems and consider the conditions involved in building or undermining trust Several authors examine practical hazard management issues including medical vaccination programmes and popular participation in pollution control and waste management as strategies for enhancing social trust This book provides insightful analysis for researchers and students of environmental and social sciences and is essential reading for those engaged in risk management in both the public and private sectors

Democracy and Trust Mark E. Warren, 1999-10-28 Surveys suggest an erosion of trust in government among individuals and between groups Although these trends are often thought to be bad for democracy the relationship between democracy and trust is paradoxical Trust can develop where interests converge but in politics interests conflict Democracy recognizes that politics does not provide a natural terrain for robust trust relations and so includes a healthy distrust of the interests of others especially the powerful Democratic systems institutionalize distrust by providing many opportunities for citizens to oversee those empowered with the public trust At the same time trust is a generic social building block of collective action and for this reason alone democracy cannot do without trust At a minimum democratic institutions depend on a trust among citizens sufficient for representation resistance and alternative forms of governance Bringing together social science and political theory this book provides a valuable exploration of these central issues

Transdisciplinary Sustainability Studies Katri Huutoniemi, Petri Tapio, 2014-06-05 Arising out of human environment interaction sustainability problems resist disciplinary categories and simple solutions This book offers a fresh approach to practical and methodological concerns in transdisciplinary environmental and sustainability studies It illustrates methodological means by which researchers professionals and decision makers can address complex environmental issues While scientific reasoning is mostly guided by disciplinary traditions transdisciplinary research rests on other cognitive strategies As it does not have a ready made stance toward problems figuring out what the puzzle is and what the answer might look like are crucial aspects of transdisciplinary inquiry Through examples from environment and sustainability studies the volume discusses heuristic schemes that can give structure to this exploration By focusing on heuristics rather than on methods concepts or general guidelines the book argues that a problem centered approach often resists the rigor of methodology Learning from experience provides valuable rules of thumb checklists and other cognitive schemes for making ill defined problems more tangible Written by an international team of authors the chapters draw examples from dealing with issues in environmental protection transport and climate policy ecosystem services and disservices environmental beliefs and attitudes and more Together with more theoretically oriented chapters they show that the intellectual processes needed to tackle complex sustainability problems are as much about heuristic problem solving as they are about methodical work

Sense of Place and Sense of Planet Ursula K. Heise, 2008-09-29 Sense of Place and Sense of Planet analyzes the relationship between the imagination of the global and the ethical commitment to the local in environmentalist thought and writing from the 1960s to the present Part One critically examines the emphasis on local identities and communities in North American environmentalism by establishing conceptual connections between environmentalism and ecocriticism on one hand and theories of globalization transnationalism and cosmopolitanism on the other It proposes the concept of eco cosmopolitanism as a shorthand for envisioning these connections and the cultural and aesthetic forms into which they translate Part Two focuses on conceptualizations of environmental danger and connects environmentalist and ecocritical thought with the interdisciplinary field of risk theory in the social sciences arguing that environmental justice theory and ecocriticism stand to benefit from closer consideration of the theories of cosmopolitanism that have arisen in this field from the analysis of transnational communities at risk Both parts of the book combine in depth theoretical discussion with detailed analyses of novels poems films computer software and installation artworks from the US and abroad that translate new connections between global national and local forms of awareness into innovative aesthetic forms combining allegory epic and views of the planet as a whole with modernist and postmodernist strategies of fragmentation montage collage and zooming

An Investigation of Women's and Men's Perceptions and Meanings Associated with Food Risks Andrea Bieberstein, 2013-08-18 Concern about food risks is widespread Consumers however are found to differ in terms of how they evaluate these risks One of the most prominent findings in this regard is the differences between women and men Many studies report that men are less worried about environmental and technological risks than women which is also the case for food risks At the same time it is criticized that these differences are often exaggerated similarities overlooked and systematic investigations are lacking Andrea

Bieberstein gives a comprehensive overview of theoretical approaches to risk perception and empirical work that has been conducted in the field of risk perception research Furthermore she provides a systematic investigation of how food risks are constructed for women and men by uncovering the meanings in terms of associations feelings and values that they attach to various food risks This allows a deeper understanding of the gender differences in risk perception in terms of their relevance and meaning
