Schmid,Franz M. Wuketits,1987-10-31 In retrospect the 19th century tmdboubtedly seems to be the century of evolutionism The discovery of time and therewith the experience of variability was made by many sciences not only historians worked on the elaboration and interpretation of this discovery but also physicists geographers biologists and economists demographers archaeologists and even philosophers The successful empirical fotmdation of evolutive processes by Darwin and his disciples suggested Herbert Spencer s vigorously pursued efforts in searching for an extensive catalogue of prime and deduced evolutionary principles that would allow to integrate the most different disciplines of natural and social sciences as well as the efforts of philosophers of ethics and epistemologists Soon it became evident however that the claim for integration anticipated by far the actual results of these different disciplines Darwin's theory suffered from the fact that in the beginning a hereditary factor which could have his theory could not be detected while the gains of genetics supported in the social sciences got lost in consequence of the completely ahistorical or biologicistic speculations of some representatives of the evolutionary research programme and common socialdarwinistic misinterpretations Society Ian Robertson,1989 This concise elegantly written paperback volume on the essential elements of sociology is perfect as the sole textbook for a brief introductory course or as a core text to be supplemented with other readings Sociology David M.
