Richard T. Antoun, Mary Elaine Hegland, 1987 External Research , 1953 Iranian Romance in the Digital Age Janet Afary, Jesilyn Faust, 2021-01-28 Following the 1979 Islamic Revolution there was a dramatic reversal of women s rights and the state revived many premodern social conventions through modern means and institutions Customs such as the enforced

veiling of women easy divorce for men child marriage and polygamy were robustly reintroduced and those who did not conform to societal strictures were severely punished At the same time new social and economic programs benefited the urban and rural poor especially women which had a direct impact on gender relations and the institution of marriage Edited by Janet Afary and Jesilyn Faust this interdisciplinary volume responds to the growing interest and need for literature on gender marriage and family relations in the Islamic context The book examines how the institution of marriage transformed in Iran paying close attention to the country s culture and politics Part One examines changes in urban marriages to new forms of cohabitation In Part Two contributors such as Soraya Tremayne explore the way technology and social media has impacted and altered the institution of family Part Three turns its eye to look at marital changes in the rural and tribal sectors of society through the works of anthropologists including Erika Friedl and Mary Hegland Based on the work of both new and established scholars the book provides an up to date study of an important and intensely politicized subject

Twenty Years of Islamic Revolution Eric Hooglund,2002-05-01 The works gathered here are based on recent intensive fieldwork in Iran by leading scholars of Iranian culture The contributors cover a multitude of important topics such as civil society foreign relations Islamism religious secular debates and women s issues These essays challenge stereotypes that have developed about modern day Iran and will stimulate debate and discussion among scholars and students of the Middle East

External Research List ,1958 Land and Revolution in Iran, 1960-1980 Eric J. Hooglund,2014-07-03 Carried out by the government of the shah between 1962 and 1971 the Iranian land reform was one of the most ambitious such undertakings in modern Middle Eastern history Yet beneath apparent statistical success the actual accomplishments of the program in terms of positive benefits for the peasantry were negligible Later the resulting widespread discontent of thousands of Iranian villagers would contribute to the shah s downfall In the first major study of the effects of this widely publicized program Eric Hooglund s analysis demonstrates that the primary motives behind the land reform were political Attempting to supplant the near absolute authority of the landlord class over the countryside the central government hoped to extend its own authority throughout rural Iran While the Pahlavi government accomplished this goal its failure to implement effective structural reform proved to be a long term liability Hooglund who conducted field research in rural Iran throughout the 1970s and who witnessed the unfolding of the revolution from a small village provides a careful description of the development of the land reform and of its effects on the main groups involved landlords peasants local officials merchants and brokers He shows how the continuing poverty in the countryside forced the migration of thousands of peasants to the cities resulting in serious shortages of agricultural workers and an oversupply of unskilled urban labor When the shah s government was faced with mass opposition in the cities in 1978 not only did a disillusioned rural population fail to support the regime but thousands of villagers participated in the protests that hastened the collapse of the monarchy Urban Change in Iran Fatemeh Farnaz Arefian,Seyed Hossein Iradj Moeini,2015-12-18 This book based on conference excerpts investigates various aspects of contemporary Iranian urbanism. The topics covered range from the impacts of political developments on the cities, rapid socio-economic developments to the cities' troubled relationship with the country's built environment, history and their frequently ill-managed exposure to Western notions of development and globalisation. Last but not least, the country's vulnerability to natural disasters in an age of increasing urban population densification is also considered. Alongside more theoretically and artistically oriented debates, the book's individual contributions turn their attention to the now much higher proportion of urban dwellers in the country's rising population. It also discusses the policies designed in response to these demographic moves, including those to develop new towns, find housing for the excess population in existing cities, renovate historic buildings and create new public spaces. The practice-policy oriented contributions also include those concerning the country's responses to natural disasters.

Days of Revolution Mary Elaine Hegland, 2013-10-30 Outside of Shiraz in the Fars Province of southwestern Iran lies Aliabad. Mary Hegland arrived in this then small agricultural village of several thousand people in the summer of 1978, unaware of the momentous changes that would sweep this town and this country in the months ahead. She became the only American researcher to witness the Islamic Revolution firsthand over her eighteen-month stay. Days of Revolution offers an insider's view of how regular people were drawn into, experienced and influenced the 1979 Revolution and its aftermath. Conventional wisdom assumes Shi'a religious ideology fueled the revolutionary movement. But Hegland counters that the Revolution spread through much more pragmatic concerns: growing inequality, lack of development and employment opportunities, government corruption. Local expectations of leaders and the political process, expectations developed from their experience with traditional kinship-based factions, guided local villagers' attitudes and decision making, and they often adopted the religious justifications for Revolution only after joining the uprising. Sharing stories of conflict and revolution alongside in-depth interviews, the book sheds new light on this critical historical moment. Returning to Aliabad decades later, Days of Revolution closes with a view of the village and revolution thirty years on. Over the course of several visits between 2003 and 2008, Mary Hegland investigates the lasting effects of the Revolution on the local political factions and in individual lives. As Iran remains front-page news, this intimate look at the country's recent history and its people has never been more timely or critical for understanding the critical interplay of local and global politics in Iran.

Sexual Politics in Modern Iran Janet Afary, 2009-04-09 Janet Afary is a native of Iran and a leading historian. Her work focuses on gender and sexuality and draws on her experience of growing up in Iran and her involvement with Iranian women of different ages and social strata. These observations and a wealth of historical documents form the kernel of this book, which charts the history of the nation's sexual revolution from the nineteenth century to today. What comes across is the extraordinary resilience of the Iranian people who have drawn on a rich social and cultural heritage to defy the repression and hardship of the Islamist state and its predecessors. It is this resilience the author concludes which forms the basis of a sexual revolution taking place in Iran today, one that is promoting reforms in marriage and family laws and demanding more egalitarian gender and sexual relations.

Driving Culture in Iran Reza Banakar, 2015-12-18. Iran has one of the highest rates of road traffic accidents worldwide and according to a recent UNICEF report, the current rate of road accidents in Iran is 20 times more than the world average. Using extensive interviews with a variety of Iranians from a range of backgrounds, this book explores their dangerous driving habits and the explanations for their disregard for traffic laws. It argues that Iranian driving behaviour is an indicator of how they have historically related to each other and to their society at large and how they have maintained a form of social order through law, culture and religion. By considering how ordinary Iranians experience the traffic problem in their cities and how they describe traffic rules, laws, authorities and the rights of other citizens, Driving Culture in Iran provides an original and valuable insight into Iranian legal, social and political culture. A Mission for Development

Richard Garlitz, 2018-07-02. A Mission for Development tells the remarkable story of faculty from three Utah universities who lived and worked in Iran as part of the Point Four Program. Using the experience of these advisors, the book reexamines the rise and fall of the US-Iranian alliance and explores the roles that American universities played in international development during the Cold War. The Point Four Program sponsored American technical assistance for developing countries during the 1950s, an American Cold War strategy to cultivate friendly governments and economic development in countries purportedly susceptible to Communist influence. Between 1951 and 1964, advisors from Brigham Young University sought to modernize Iranian public education; experts from Utah State University worked to improve agricultural production; and doctors and nurses from the University of Utah helped with the Iranian government's rural health initiatives. In A Mission for Development, author Richard Garlitz offers a critical and clear-eyed assessment of the challenges the Utahns faced and the contributions they made to Iranian development. The book also reexamines the Iranian political crisis of the early 1950s and the overthrow of Prime Minister Mohammad Mossadegh through the eyes of the Utah advisors. A Mission for Development provides rare insight into the university role in international development and will be of interest to historians and policy
