Serialization, Commercialization and the Children's Classics Amy Webster, 2024-12-12 An exploration of the serialization of children's classics by contemporary publishers this book digs into the impact of the practice and provides new ways of reading the corpus of British children's literature from the 20th century Amy Webster demonstrates how publishers select texts for their series which texts they omit which outliers are sometimes included and how a core group of works from the golden age of children's literature emerged The text also examines how texts are abridged and transformed from publisher to publisher through close readings of The Wind in the Willows and Alice's Adventures in Wonderland and how the repackaging of works within a series highlight issues and choices tied to key paratextual elements Analysing data through distant reading and close reading of series from Ladybird Longman Puffin and Walker Illustrated editions this book sheds light on how modern classics series are marked by variation and instability but also a reductive homogeneity Through her use of quantitative and text focused research Webster reveals how commercial motivations have created a gulf between the canonical concepts of the classic and how the term functions as a marketing tool in British children's publishing With notions of what counts as a classic compromised and complicated this book leads the call for a critical approach towards both the term classic and to reading children's classics that acknowledges how they are tied to the commercial enterprises of the children's book business

Founders, Classics, Canons Peter R. Baehr, Three categories founders classics canons have been vitally important in helping to frame sociology's precarious identity defining the discipline's sense of its past and the implications for its current activity Today that identity is being challenged as never before Within the academy a number of positions feminist postmodernist poststructuralist postcolonial converge in questioning the status of the tradition These currents in turn reflect wider social questioning about the meaning and uses of knowledge in technologically advanced societies In Founders Classics Canons Peter Baehr scrutinizes the nature of this challenge He provides a model of the processes through which texts are elevated to classic status and defends the continuing importance of sociology's traditions for a university education in the social sciences The concept of classic is as Baehr notes a complex one Essentially it assumes a scale of judgment that deems certain texts as exemplary in eminence But what is the nature of this eminence Baehr analyzes various responses to this question Most notable are those that focus on the functions classics perform for the scholarly community that employs them the rhetorical force classics are said to possess and the processes of reception that result in classic status The concept of classic is often equated with two other notions founders and canon The former has a well established pedigree within the discipline but widespread usage of the latter in sociology is much more recent and polemical in tone Baehr offers arguments against these two ways of interpreting defending and attacking sociology's great texts and authors He demonstrates why in logical and historical terms discourses and traditions cannot actually be founded and why the term founder has little explanatory content Equally he takes issue with the notion of canon and argues that the analogy between the theological canon and sociological classic texts though seductive is mistaken While questioning the uses to which the concepts of founder classic and canon have been put Baehr's purpose is not dismissive On the contrary he seeks to understand the value and meaning they have for the people who employ them in the cultural battle to affirm or excoriate the liberal university tradition In examining the tactics of this battle this volume offers a model of how social theory can be critical rather than radical Peter Baehr teaches in the department of politics and sociology Lingnan University Hong Kong His previous book for Transaction Caesar and the Fading of the Roman World was designated an Outstanding Academic Book by Choice
