Multimodality in Canadian Black Feminist Writing Maria Caridad Casas, 2009-01-01 This book develops a theory of multimodality the participation of a text in more than one mode centred on the poetry poetics of Lillian Allen Claire Harris Dionne Brand and Marlene Nourbese Philip How do these poets represent

oral Caribbean English Creoles CECs in writing and negotiate the relationship between the high literary in Canadian letters and the social and historical meanings of CECs How do the latter relate to the idea of female and black Through fluid use of code and mode switching the movement of Brand and Philip between creole and standard English and written orality and standard writing forms part of their meanings Allen s eye spellings precisely indicate stereotypical creole sounds yet use the phonological system of standard English On stage Allen projects a black female body in the world and as a speaking subject She thereby shows that the implication of the written in the literary excludes her body s language as performance and she embodies her poetry to realize a language alternative to the colonizing literary Harris s creole writing helps her project a fragmented personality a range of dialects enabling quite different personae to emerge within one body Thus Harris Brand Philip and Allen both project the identity female and black and explore this social position in relation to others Considering textual multimodality opens up a wide range of material connections Although written this poetry is also oral if oral then also embodied if embodied then also participating in discourses of race gender sexuality and a host of other systems of social organization and individual identity Finally the semiotic body as a mode i e as a resource for making meaning allows written meanings to be made that cannot otherwise be expressed in writing In every case Allen Philip Harris and Brand escape the constraints of dominant media refiguring language via dialect and mode to represent a black feminist sensibility Critical

Constructivism Primer Joe L. Kincheloe, 2005 The Critical Constructivism Primer introduces education students to the study of knowledge how it is inscribed by particular values and produced in problematic ways whose interests it serves and how it shapes the identities of those who consume it Critical constructivism is an epistemological position that examines the process by which knowledge is socially constructed Joe L Kincheloe takes readers through the basic concepts and alerts them to the dangers of objectivism reductionism and the pathological views of self and world that emerge if students and educators are unaware of the construction of knowledge by dominant power interests The book is essential reading for individuals who want to become researchers and educators Sociolinguistics / Soziolinguistik. Brain, Mind and the Signifying Body Paul Thibault, 2006-09-17 Brain Mind and the Signifying Body is an exploration of a multimodal theory of cognitive science Using linguistic theories first developed by Saussure and more latterly by M A K Halliday Paul Thibault analyses how social and biological systems interact to produce meaning This fascinating study will be of interest to undergraduates and academics researching cognitive linguistics and advanced semiotics The book engages with the current dialogue between the human and life sciences to ask questions about the relationship between the physical biological aspects of a human being and the sociocultural framework in which a human being exists Paul J Thibault argues that we need to understand both the semiotic discursive nature of meaning making and the physical context in which this activity takes place The two are inseparable and hence the only way we can understand our subjective experience of our environment and our perceptions of our inner states of mind is by giving equal weight to both frameworks This ecosocial semiotic theory engages with linguistics semiotics activity theory biology and psychology In so doing the book produces a new way of looking at how a human being makes sense of his or her environment but also how this environment shapes such meanings cognitive science sociology the law the media medicine computer science The most authoritative up to date comprehensive and international reference source in its field Qualitative Research Practice Clive Seale, 2007 Aimed at the student reader this book demonstrates the benefits of using particular methods from the viewpoint of real life experience It contains chapters written by leading internationally distinguished qualitative researchers who recount and reflect on their own research experiences as well as others Diversity in Environmental Education Research , 2009-01-01 Research in environmental education EE is a growing field of inquiry and should be seen as respondent to a variety of program developments around the world These diverse programs are the context for this body of educational research Diversity in EE research is also compounded when one considers the various cultures epistemologies and research traditions that may inform the field This complexity accounts for the range of forms for environmental learning in formal informal or non formal contexts There is a good deal of evidence that in order to be more responsive to the needs of diverse populations program developments around the world are now beginning to reflect the variation in our society However the same cannot always be said in terms of research methodologies within mainstream environmental education research Outside of a few examples there seems to have been very little in the way of development of research genres aimed at understanding characterizing and supporting cultural diversity within much of mainstream environmental education Diversity of method may also be important for the overall quality or health of environmental education research To locate many of the new ideas and approaches in this area one needs to look outside environmental education towards general educational research or to other fields such as environmental justice indigenous education science education and health education to name only a few examples This volume of original research reports from around the globe begins to richly describe aspects of diversity in environmental education research It does so in two ways first it mirrors the diversity of voices and cultures that are conducting research in this ever broadening and increasingly global and international field of inquiry second it illuminates a potential diversity of research methods by highlighting a range of methodologies salient in other fields which have emerging promise for the practice of research in environmental education Discursive Pragmatics Jan Zienkowski, Jan-Ola Östman, Jef Verschueren, 2011 The ten volumes of Handbook of Pragmatics Highlights focus on the most salient topics in the field of pragmatics thus dividing its wide interdisciplinary spectrum in a transparent and manageable way While the other volumes select specific philosophical cognitive grammatical social cultural variational or interactional angles this 8th volume focuses on theories and phenomena at the level of discourse but leaving aside conversational interaction It provides the reader with pragmatics oriented information on discourse analysis critical discourse analysis and critical linguistics as well as text linguistics and appraisal theory while introducing other specific approaches to discourse through concepts such as polyphony intertextuality genre and enunciation Furthermore topics such as public discourse narrative figures of speech cohesion and coherence pragmatic markers manipulation and humor are all dealt with in separate chapters The binding idea explained in the introduction is that discursive pragmatics may serve as a platform for a diversity of perspectives on discourse as they have emerged not only in the language sciences but also in the humanities and social sciences in general

Register Variation in the New Testament Petrine Texts Chiaen Liu, 2022-02-07 This book examines the nature of the early church from a Petrine perspective employing an analysis of register to implement a more synthetic study of relevant texts in the New Testament Liu utilises a type of discourse analysis that provides a framework for classifying grammatical and lexical information so that the reader can better understand the social function of not only Peter's speeches in Acts but also the two epistles attributed to him Liu's original and detailed study looks at the content and structure of the texts to enhance our understanding of the early church with particular attention paid to the dichotomy between Petrine and Pauline Christianity and their competing pictures of Christian origins This book will interest all scholars and students who wish to extend their understanding of both the historical and literary Peter

Research Methods in Language and Education Nancy H.
