From Good Intentions to Good Practice Catherine Humphreys, 2000 In recent years there has been rapid proliferation of services for women and children in situations of domestic violence however there are many gaps and inconsistencies in service provision This research aimed to establish the range and extent of services across the UK for families where there is domestic violence to identify innovative work and thus develop a framework for good practice From good intentions to good practice looks at provision and practice across a range of services with regard to inter agency working definitions and guidelines staff training safety issues monitoring and screening evaluation funding vbTab The report provides an extensive framework for good practice in working with families where there is domestic violence and highlights recommendations for policy development From good intentions to good practice is essential reading for all agencies working with families particularly Women's Aid, women's refuge organisations concerned with children's welfare, social services and perpetrator programmes as well as policy makers, researchers and anyone interested in issues of domestic violence and family policy.

Women, Violence and Strategies for Action Jill Radford, Melissa Friedberg, Lynne Harne, 2000. This collection gives important insight into the new issues and questions that have become central to understandings of women violence and resistance. It focuses on the connections between research and the development of strategies for change by providing excellent examples of policy relevant feminist research rooted in both academe and activism. The emphasis throughout is on the link between research and strategies for action at the local, national and international level. The book gathers together the many exciting ideas, discussions and developments arising from the work of the researchers and activists who are part of the British Sociological Association Violence Against Women Study Group. The contributing authors share a commitment to research that centres on the material reality of women's lives and assists the generation of strategies for action. It complements the earlier volume Women, Violence and Male Power extending the latter's coverage in important ways by addressing differences as well as commonalities between women and the complexities of feminist analysis and activism in a changing context. Women, Violence and Strategies for Action is of direct relevance to practitioners working in the professions of probation, social work and law as well as students and researchers in the fields of women's studies, sociology, social policy, social work, criminology and socio-legal studies. It will also be of interest to women's organizations including local inter-agency forums.

BMJ, 2007. Effective Practice in Health and Social Care Ros Carnwell, Julian Buchanan, 2005. This text looks at partnership in human services between the different professional groups delivering health and social care to a broad range of client groups. Each chapter focuses on how the challenges of partnership work can be overcome and this is supported by examples from practice and research.

What Works in Reducing Domestic Violence? Julie Taylor-Browne, 2001. This is probably one of the most important books on domestic violence to be published in Britain in the last several years. What Works in Reducing Domestic Violence presents a wealth of information on domestic violence and the strategies which have proved effective for dealing with it. The book is outstanding for its quality and number of its contributors, all of whom are well known and respected in the field. The book is written to be accessible to practitioners, academics and anyone engaged in multi-agency work in this area. Focusing on how to improve agency responses to women's needs, the chapters draw on a wide range of evaluations carried out internationally and on feedback from women themselves. Subjects covered include housing needs, health services, the criminal justice response, children's needs, multi-agency working, perpetrators, civil remedies, outreach and advocacy. The book also examines what is known about the risks of domestic violence and its costs and makes the case for targeted interventions which will ultimately save both lives and money. The bibliography offers a most helpful listing of recent work in this field. This book has its origins in work commissioned in 1999 by the Home Office of England and Wales under its Crime Reduction Programme Violence against Women Initiative.

Summaries of the work in each area were published as a Crime Reduction Programme Briefing Note which proved to be one of the most popular collections that the Home Office ever issued The reports now available in this book represent the views of the authors and should not be taken to be Home Office or Government policy However they amount to a comprehensive guide which any professional in this field will want to have always to hand Contents Women survivors views on domestic violence services Audrey Mullender and Gill Hague Meeting the needs of children who live with domestic violence Audrey Mullender Dealing with perpetrators Audrey Mullender and Sheila Burton What role can the Health services play Leslie L Davidson Valerie King Jo Garcia Sally Marchant Effective policing of domestic violence Jalna Hanmer and Sue Griffiths Accommodation provision for households experiencing domestic violence Debra Levison Nicola Harwin Domestic violence and harassment An assessment of the civil remedies Susan Edwards New directions in prosecuting domestic violence Susan Edwards Supporting women and children in their communities Outreach and advocacy approaches to domestic violence Liz Kelly and Cathy Humphreys Multi agency initiatives as a response to domestic violence Gill Hague Assessing and managing the risk of domestic violence Sylvia Walby and Andrew Myhill Monitoring costs and evaluating needs Debbie Crisp and Betsy Stanko Julie Taylor Browne was a Principal Research Officer the Home Office responsible for the Crime Reduction Programme s Violence against Women Initiative

Violence Against Women Lily Greenan, 2004 Families in Society Linda McKie, Sarah Cunningham-Burley, Jo Campling, 2005 Acknowledging the increasing diversity and complexity of families this innovative book proposes a new conceptual framework for understanding families and other relationships that both challenges and attempts to reconcile traditional and contemporary approaches Using the notion of boundaries the book shifts thinking from families as entities to families as relationship processes Emphasising the processes that underlie boundary construction and reconstruction suggests that the key to understanding family life is the process of relationship formation The ideas of entity boundary margins and hybridity provide a framework for understanding the diverse and often contradictory ways in which families contribute to society Families in society makes a significant contribution to the academic literature on families and is essential reading for social science students social researchers policy makers and practitioners interested in families and relationships
