The Origins Of Sdi 1944 1983:

The Origins of SDI, 1944-1983 Donald R. Baucom, 1992 Most people think Star Wars began with the ideas of Ronald Reagan but its roots reach decades further back In this first scholarly account of the origins of the Strategic Defense Initiative SDI historian Don Baucom traces these roots back to the dawn of the missile age in 1944 He finds SDI emerging after a period of nearly 40 years from forces generated by technological developments changing strategic conditions and the collapse of the SALT arms control negotiations of the 1970s Managing National Security Policy William W. Newmann, 2010-06-15 The U S national security decision making system is a product of the Cold War Formed in 1947 with the National Security Council it developed around the demands of competing with and containing the USSR But the world after the collapse of communism and particularly the tragedy of September 11 is vastly different A threatening but familiar enemy has given way to a complex environment of more diverse and less predictable threats As the creation of the Homeland Security Council and Office of Homeland Security indicate the United States must now reevaluate standard national security processes for this more uncertain world In this timely book William W Newmann examines the way presidents manage their advisory process for national security decision making and the way that process evolves over the course of an administration s term Three detailed case studies show how the president and his senior advisors managed arms control and nuclear strategy during the first terms of the Carter Reagan and G H W Bush presidencies These studies enhanced by interviews with key members of the national security teams including James Baker Brent Scowcroft and Zbigniew Brzezinski reveal significant patterns of structure and adaptation They provide a window to how decision making in the modern White House really works at a moment when national security decisions are again at the top of the agenda Specifically Newmann investigates this pattern Each president begins his administration with a standard National Security Council based interagency process which he then streamlines toward a reliance on senior officials working in small groups and a confidence structure of a few key advisors Newmann examines the institutional pressures that push administrations in this direction as he also weighs the impact of the leadership styles of the presidents themselves In so doing he reaches the conclusion that decision making can be an audition process through which presidents discover which advisors they trust And the most successful process is one that balances formal informal and confidence sources to maintain full discussion of diverse opinions while settling those debates informally at the senior most levels Unlike previous studies Managing National Security Policy views decision making as dynamic rather than as a static system inaugurated at the beginning of a president s term The key to understanding the decision making process rests upon the study of the evolving relationships between the president and his senior advisors Awareness of this evolution paints a complex portrait of policy making which may help future presidents design national security decision structures that fit the realities of the office in today s world Justifying Ballistic Missile Defence Columba Peoples, 2010 Examines the ways in which views of technology have been used in debates over ballistic missile defence The Visioneers W. Patrick McCray, 2013 In 1969 Princeton physicist Gerard O'Neill began looking outward to space colonies as the new frontier for humanity's expansion. A decade later, Eric Drexler, an MIT-trained engineer, turned his attention to the molecular world as the place where society's future needs could be met using self-replicating nanoscale machines. Patrick McCray traces how these visioneers and the communities they fostered blended countercultural ideals with hard science, entrepreneurship, libertarianism, and unbridled optimism about the future.

A Global History of the Nuclear Arms Race Richard Dean Burns, Joseph M. Siracusa, 2013-04-23 Written by two preeminent authors in the field, this book provides an accessible global narrative of the nuclear arms race since 1945 that focuses on the roles of key scientists, military chiefs, and political leaders. The first book of its kind to provide a global perspective of the arms race, this two-volume work connects episodes worldwide involving nuclear weapons in a comprehensive narrative fashion. Beginning with a discussion of the scientific research of the 1930s and 1940s and the Hiroshima decision, the authors focus on five basic themes: political dimensions, technological developments, military and diplomatic strategies, and impact. The history of the international nuclear arms race is examined within the context of four historical eras: America's nuclear monopoly, America's nuclear superiority, superpower parity, and the post-Cold War era. Information about the historical development of the independent deterrence of Britain, France, and China, as well as the piecemeal deterrence of newcomers Israel, India, Pakistan, and North Korea, is also included, as is coverage of the efforts aimed at the international control of nuclear weapons and the diplomatic architecture that underpins the global nuclear non-proliferation regime.

Military History of the Cold War, 1962-1991 Jonathan M. House, 2020-09-24 Study of the Cold War all too often shows us the war that wasn't fought. The reality, of course, is that many hot conflicts did occur, some with the great powers' weapons and approval, others without. It is this reality and this period of quasi-war and semiconflict that Jonathan M. House plumbs in A Military History of the Cold War, 1962-1991, a complex case study in the Clausewitzian relationship between policy and military force during a time of global upheaval and political realignment. This volume opens a new perspective on three fraught decades of Cold War history, revealing how the realities of time, distance, resources, and military culture often constrained and diverted the inclinations or policies of world leaders. In addition to the Vietnam War and nuclear confrontations between the USSR and the United States, this period saw dozens of regional wars and insurgencies fought throughout Asia, Africa, and Latin America. Cuba, Pakistan, Indonesia, Israel, Egypt, and South Africa pursued their own goals in ways that drew the superpowers into regional disputes. Even clashes ostensibly unrelated to the politics of East-West confrontation, such as the Nigerian-Biafran conflict, the Falklands/Malvinas War, and the Indonesian occupation of East Timor, involved armed forces, weapons, and tactics developed for the larger conflict and thus come under House's scrutiny. His study also takes up nontraditional or specialized aspects of the period, including weapons of mass destruction, civil-military relations, civil defense and control of domestic disorders The result is a single integrated survey and analysis of a complex period in geopolitical history which fills a significant gap in our knowledge of the organization logistics operations and tactics involved in conflict throughout the Cold War Arguments that Count Rebecca Slayton, 2023-10-31 How differing assessments of risk by physicists and computer scientists have influenced public debate over nuclear defense In a rapidly changing world we rely upon experts to assess the promise and risks of new technology But how do these experts make sense of a highly uncertain future In Arguments that Count Rebecca Slayton offers an important new perspective Drawing on new historical documents and interviews as well as perspectives in science and technology studies she provides an original account of how scientists came to terms with the unprecedented threat of nuclear armed intercontinental ballistic missiles ICBMs She compares how two different professional communities physicists and computer scientists constructed arguments about the risks of missile defense and how these arguments changed over time Slayton shows that our understanding of technological risks is shaped by disciplinary repertoires the codified knowledge and mathematical rules that experts use to frame new challenges And significantly a new repertoire can bring long neglected risks into clear view In the 1950s scientists recognized that high speed computers would be needed to cope with the unprecedented speed of ICBMs But the nation's elite science advisors had no way to analyze the risks of computers so used physics to assess what they could radar and missile performance Only decades later after establishing computing as a science were advisors able to analyze authoritatively the risks associated with complex software most notably the risk of a catastrophic failure As we continue to confront new threats including that of cyber attack Slayton offers valuable insight into how different kinds of expertise can limit or expand our capacity to address novel technological risks History of the Office of the Secretary of Defense: McNamara, Clifford, and the burdens of Vietnam, 1965-1969 , 2011
