The Credibility of Sovereignty - The Political Fiction of a Concept Elia R.G. Pusterla, 2015-12-19 The book deeply analyses the bilateral relations between Switzerland and the European Union and their effect on the former's sovereignty in the context of Europeanisation This touches on philosophical debates on the complexity of sovereignty What sovereignty is at stake when talking about Swiss EU relations This issue not only faces the elusiveness of sovereignty as a concept but also the proliferation of hypocrisy on its presence within states The book encounters the deconstructionist hypothesis stating that there is nothing to worry about but the belief there is something to worry about Derrida's deconstruction of sovereignty allows indeed one to grasp the fictional essence of sovereignty based on the metaphysics of presence The presence of self positing sovereign ipseity is fictional since absent in the present but spectrally present in the belief of its presence to come Sovereignty is a matter of credibility or the credible promise of a normative statement to come Hence the book challenges the realist neorealist argument stating that states are credibly sovereign until proven otherwise and explains that the debate on state sovereignty calls for the unveiling of this hypocritical epistemology cunningly disguised as an objective presence Swiss EU relations thus become the cornerstone to not only theorise but also test sovereignty and deconstruct the two ontological and epistemological sides of the same coin or the modern hypocrisy of sovereignty This deconstruction constitutes the very problematique of any attempt to understand whether and how a state can be sovereign and solve the problem as to how to neutralise the difference and identify the difference between credible and incredible claims of sovereignty This problematique connects the theory and practice of sovereignty innovatively providing positivist evidence on the arguable credibility of the Swiss claim of sovereignty and confirming the presence of a theological dimension within politics

The Nine of Hearts: A Novel Benjamin Leopold Farjeon, 2020-09-28 This morning at the Central Criminal Court Mr Justice Fenmore resumed the trial of Edward Layton for the wilful murder of his wife Agnes Layton on the morning of the 26th of March by the administration of poisonous narcotics in such quantities as to produce death Extraordinary as was the excitement caused by yesterday's proceedings the public interest in this mysterious murder was intensified by the strange decision arrived at by the prisoner on this the third day of his trial The Attorney general Mr J Protheroe Q C and Mr Standing conducted the case on behalf of the Crown The widely spread rumor that an episode of a startling character was impending received confirmation immediately upon the entrance of the prisoner in the dock He presented a care worn appearance and while the usual formalities were in progress it was observed that he and his counsel Mr Bainbridge Q C were in earnest consultation and it appeared as if the learned gentleman were endeavoring to overcome some resolution which the prisoner had formed At the termination of this conversation Mr Bainbridge turning to the Bench said I have to claim your lordship s indulgence for a statement which I find it necessary to make It is in the remembrance of your lordship that on the first day of this trial the prisoner was undefended being as it appeared resolutely determined to defend himself Yesterday morning that is upon the second day of the trial I informed your lordship that the prisoner had been prevailed upon by his friends to intrust his defence to me Being satisfied in my own mind that nothing would occur to disturb this arrangement which I venture to say was an advisable one I did not feel called upon to mention that the prisoner s consent to accept legal aid was very reluctantly given That this was so however is proved by what has since transpired Both in writing and by word of mouth the prisoner now insists upon conducting his own case and has distinctly informed me that he will not permit me to act for him I am empowered to say that his decision is not in any sense personal to myself It is simply and regrettably that he has resolved not to be defended or represented by counsel In these circumstances I have no option but to place myself in your lordship s hands
