continuing bibliography of scholarly articles about jazz in non jazz journals      Art Rebels Paul Lopes,2019-06-11 How creative freedom race class and gender shaped the rebellion of two visionary artists Postwar America experienced an unprecedented flourishing of avant garde and independent art Across the arts artists rebelled against traditional conventions embracing a commitment to creative autonomy and personal vision never before witnessed in the United States Paul Lopes calls this the Heroic Age of American Art and identifies two artists Miles Davis and Martin Scorsese as two of its leading icons In this compelling book Lopes tells the story of how a pair of talented and outspoken art rebels defied prevailing conventions to elevate American jazz and film to unimagined critical heights During the Heroic Age of American Art where creative independence and the unrelenting pressures of success were constantly at odds Davis and Scorsese became influential figures with such modern classics as Kind of Blue and Raging Bull Their careers also reflected the conflicting ideals of and contentious debates concerning avant garde and independent art during this period In examining their art and public stories Lopes also shows how their rebellions as artists were intimately linked to their racial and ethnic identities and how both artists adopted hypermasculine ideologies that exposed the problematic intersection of gender with their racial and ethnic identities as iconic art rebels Art Rebels is the essential account of a new breed of artists who left an indelible mark on American culture in the second half of the twentieth century It is an unforgettable portrait of two iconic artists who exemplified the complex interplay of the quest for artistic autonomy and the expression of social identity during the Heroic Age of American Art      Civic Jazz Gregory Clark,2015-02-25 Greg Clark welcomes his readers by asking them to accompany him on a trip to a New Orleans club where the warmth of the music and the warmth of the audience instill a special feeling of communion of getting along Clark s book treats the idea that jazz demands from those who make it as well as those who listen a form of life that substantiates the seemingly impossible American value that is e pluribus unum The process of getting along in communication in community is something the great student of culture and rhetoric Kenneth Burke spent his life trying to describe Clark has found that jazz as an activity and a cultural form goes a long way toward illustrating that process Jazz is often described as democratic Burke s rhetorical and aesthetic ideas explain how this is so Working with others to address immediate problems they share can align for a time individuals who are otherwise very different That is what jazz does it enables people who are different and even in conflict with each other to combine in cooperation toward an end that matters to all of them just now And this too is what civic life in democratic cultures demands In chapters that deal with such issues as what jazz does and how jazz works Clark uses examples from jazz history from Louis Armstrong and Earl Hines to Miles Davis and Bill Evans but also from contemporary jazz both recorded and live e g pianist Jonathan Batiste and his Social Music drummer Terri Lyne Carrington and her collaborative Mosaic Project or the newly emergent vocalist Cecile McIlorin Salvant all of this in the service of making improvisation and ensemble work yield the experience of transcendence that results from intense engagement with jazz as aesthetic form for players and listeners alike The resulting book is a study of jazz in the context of American aspirations toward democratic interaction and a study of Kenneth Burke's democratic rhetorical theory and practice as essentially aesthetic in function and effect
