

1760—THE O'NEILL HARP

The harp on the Guinness label is probably the oldest European harp. It was last played in 1760, the year after the first Arthur Guinness acquired the brewery in Dublin where Guinness has been brewed during two reigns. The O'Neill harp is now in Trinity College, Dublin.

1760—THE STATE COACH

Soon after George III's accession in 1760, the great gilded State Coach that was to carry all his successors to the Abbey, was commissioned. Designed by Sir William Chambers, with panels painted by Cipriani and carving by Joseph Wilson, it was finished in 1762.

SUPPER FOR MR. DISRAELI

In 1817, the first year of Queen Victoria's reign, Disraeli wrote to his sister, Sarah:—"No, after all, there was a division in Queen Victoria's first Parliament—209 to 26. I then left the house, none of us scarcely having dined. The result and excitement unprecedented. I dined or rather supped at the Carlton with a large party of the flower of our side off oysters, Guinness, and beefed bones, and got to bed at 11 past 11. That ended the most remarkable day hitherto of my life."

A SOLDIER AT WATERLOO

This is a passage from the diary of a Cavalry officer wounded at Waterloo.—"When I was sufficiently recovered to be permitted to take some nourishment, I felt the most extraordinary desire for a glass of Guinness. Upon expressing my wish to the doctor, he told me I might take a small glass... I thought I had never tasted anything so delightful.... I am confident that it contributed more than anything else to the renewal of my strength."

DICKENSIAN SCENE

It is well over a century since this illustration to the Pickwick Papers was published. That "Pick" drew Sam Weller writing his Valentine in front of a Guinness placard shows how widely Guinness was known in the early eighteenth century. In "Sketches by Boz," among the characters of Mrs. Blome, "first there came a large hamper of Guinness's stout and an umbrella." And later:—"Married!" said Mrs. Blome, taking the pill and a draught of Guinness—"married? Impossible!"

Right: Guinness bottle today.

DISPATCHED WITH EXPEDITION

Guinness is a great traveller. A member of Sir Douglas Mawson's Antarctic Expedition of 1929 wrote:—"The stoves were in good condition after 18 years; cocoa, salt, flour and matches were actually used afterwards. There were also four bottles of Guinness which, although frozen, were said to have been put to excellent use."

E. Zuelow,2009-03-01 From the dark shadow of civil war to the pastel painted towns of today Making Ireland Irish provides a sweeping account of the evolution of the Irish tourist industry over the twentieth century Drawing on an extensive array of previously untapped or underused sources Eric G E

Zuelow examines how a small group of tourism advocates inspired by tourist development movements in countries such as France and Spain worked tirelessly to convince their Irish compatriots that tourism was the secret to Ireland's success. Over time, tourism went from being a national joke to a national interest. Men and women from across Irish society joined in eager to help shape their country and culture for visitors' eyes. The result was Ireland as it is depicted today: a land of blue skies, smiling faces, pastel towns, natural beauty, ancient history, and timeless traditions. With lucid prose and vivid detail, Zuelow explains how careful planning transformed Irish towns and villages from grey and unattractive to bright and inviting, sanitized Irish history to avoid offending Ireland's largest tourist market, the English, and supplanted traditional rural fairs revolving around muddy animals and featuring sexually suggestive ceremonies with new family-friendly festivals and events filling today's tourist calendar. By challenging existing notions that the Irish tourist product is either timeless or the consequence of colonialism, Zuelow demonstrates that the development of tourist imagery and Irish national identity was not the result of a handful of elites or a postcolonial legacy but rather the product of an extended discussion that ultimately involved a broad cross-section of society both inside and outside Ireland. Tourism, he argues, played a vital role in making Ireland Irish.

Me, Me, Me Jon Lawrence,2019-09-01 Many commentators tell us that in today's world everyday life has become selfish and atomised that individuals live only to consume But are they wrong In Me Me Me Jon Lawrence re tells the story of England since the Second World War through the eyes of ordinary people including his own parents to argue that in fact friendship family and place all remain central to our daily lives and whilst community has changed it is far from dead He shows how in the years after the Second World War people came increasingly to question custom and tradition as the pressure to conform to societal standards became intolerable And as soon as they could millions escaped the closed face to face communities of Victorian Britain where everyone knew your business But this was not a rejection of community per se but an attempt to find another new way of living which was better suited to the modern world Community has become personal and voluntary based on genuine affection rather than proximity or need We have never been better connected or able to sustain the relationships that matter to us Me Me Me makes that case that it s time we valued and nurtured these new groups rather than lamenting the loss of more real forms of community it is all too easy to hold on to a nostalgic view of the past
