Constructing a Sociology of the Arts Vera L. Zolberg, 1990-02-23 At a time when a pile of bricks is displayed in a museum when music is composed for performance underwater and the boundaries between popular and fine art are fluid conventional understandings of art are strained in describing what art is what it includes or excludes whether and how it should be evaluated and what importance should be assigned the arts in society In this book Vera Zolberg examines diverse theoretical approaches to the study of the arts Ranging over humanistic and social scientific views representing a variety of scholarly traditions American and European she then develops a sociological approach that evaluates the institutional economic and political influences on the creation of art while also affirming the importance of the question of artistic quality The author examines the arts in the social contexts in which they are created and appreciated focusing on the ways in which people become artists the institutions in which their careers develop the supports and pressures they face the publics they need to please and the political forces with which they must contend Particular subjects covered include the process by which works are created and re created at different times with changed meanings and for new social uses the role of the audience in the realization of artistic experiences the social consequences of taste preferences the reasons for change in artistic styles and for the coexistence of many art forms and styles

Art Janet Wolff, 2021-04-29 First published in 1983 Aesthetics and the Sociology of Art provides a lucid account of two divergent tendencies in the study of aesthetics At the one extreme traditional aestheticians have assumed that art and literature are wholly independent following only the laws and inspirations of artists and artistic movements and that the question of aesthetic value is accordingly unproblematic At the other extreme some sociologists have treated works of art as no more than manifestations of the socio economic circumstances which produce them arguing that aesthetic value is therefore entirely relative matter Janet Wolff shows how both the extreme positions are untenable and argues convincingly that we must accept that the conceptions and criteria of aesthetic value are socially constructed and inevitably ideological while stopping short of the reductionist alternative which fails to recognise the irreducible questions of pleasure and of aesthetic discourse This book provides an invaluable clear guide both to old debates and to otherwise obscure modern controversies which will be welcomed both by students and scholars in the sociology of art in aesthetics in art history and in literary criticism

Meaning and Authenticity Cesar Grana, 2023-03-31 This outstanding collection of hitherto unpublished work written over the last fifteen years of the author's life reveals the development and maturation of his ideas about sociology and art and specifically about the relationship between them Grafia sees in the artistic traditions of Western society the sociological sources of our sense of cultural form as well as cultural and intellectual meaning He discusses theories of art and theories of artists as they have changed over time although the book is neither a history of art nor a criticism of specific artistic works Rather it is a defense of the sociology of art Grafia believes that the difficult and ambitious questions in the sociology of art are not merely questions of the proper role or status of the artist or the recognition of art as an ornament perhaps the supreme ornament of our culture He believes that what the sociologist must come to terms with is the view of art as the representation indeed the revelation of what is most telling and pervasive in culture itself This perspective assumes that the most serious claims made for art are in fact inseparable from the unique claims that are made about art Art can make visible what is implicit in our lives Art can put before us a statement of what we are but do not always recognize in ourselves Art is the mask and mimicry through which society gestures to us its ultimate and most poignant meanings Grafia contends that this vision of art derives from Hegelian aesthetics and he believes that this grand view whether one takes an idealist a literary or a Marxist materialist position also implies a dramatically changed conception of society itself The essays cover a variety of subjects from Marx museums and modern literature to Durkheim Daniel Bell and bullfighting the last being the apotheosis of cultural expression rendered into artistic form Throughout Grafia considers questions of the social origins of our artistic and intellectual traditions the influence of these traditions on our ways of thinking about society and their pervasiveness as standards for social meaning
