influence clients In More than a Mirror therapists describe a range of responses to their work some talk about what they have learned from particular clients some discuss aspects of the work of therapy such as bearing witness to stories of trauma or having to report suspected child abuse and examine how these experiences affect them personally and some describe the gifts and costs of doing therapy as a life's work As you share these therapists' experiences you'll notice some themes running throughout including how doing therapy heals the therapist empathy as a way to access transcendence the therapist's responses to encountering racism the particular struggles of a new therapist the personal toll of working with the dying the therapist's sexual feelings how doing therapy changes the therapist over time the struggles of working with angry or manipulative clients Editor Marcia Hill EdD a psychotherapist in private practice elaborates It is not easy to examine how deeply and personally both the practice of therapy and individual clients influence therapists as people This book shows you that therapy is not a one-way process although the therapist is clearly there in service of the client Yet therapy affects the therapist profoundly and irrevocably Every client moves us emotionally we learn something from each person The business of bearing witness to so many lives transforms us as no other work could We may write and talk about therapy as if it were all about how to impact the client but all the time we too are being impacted
