

The background of the cover is a deep red. In the center, there is a large, ornate golden archway (prabhavali) with multiple tiers of scalloped edges. Inside this archway, a woman with dark hair, wearing a red sari, is seated and playing a veena. The archway leads into a perspective view of a long, brightly lit corridor with golden pillars and a polished floor. The title 'SONG of the CUCKOO BIRD' is written in a serif font, with 'of the' in italics, across the middle of the archway.

the Global in Performance Pirkko Koski,Melissa Sihra,2010-02-19 This anthology explores the ways in which theatre and performance functions at the interstices of contemporary local and global networks Theatre and performance occurs in time and space and exists between the audience and performer as a communicative event This local world of experience and human interactivity is not easily subsumed by global networks or commercial systems and remains a potent force of expression and at times resistance The volume offers a range of critical viewpoints from which to evaluate the interrelationality of the local and the global such as philosophical cosmopolitanism post colonialism feminism class ethnicity gender and the experience of the diasporic or exilic artist The anthology concludes with a reflection between Janelle Reinelt and Marvin Carlson upon the ideas put forth in the book and the broader connectivities of the local and the global Reinelt and Carlson reveal that these concepts should not be regarded in opposition but rather as entangled something which is reflected in this volume as a whole A number of international productions and performance practices are discussed from diverse geographical and cultural perspectives illuminating the complexity of the local and the global As Reinelt suggests The global local category as a hyphenated concept has become a slogan now a clich even It first arose because the local was supposed to save the global from totalisation but in fact the global local concept became in reality so complex that this opposition was not useful anymore Carlson s and Reinelt s engagement with the essays and with the broader issues of the global and the local marks an important intervention into how we process experience through theatre and performance in the world today Contributors include Marvin Carlson Shams Eldin Lynette Hunter Pirkko Koski Yana Meerzon Yasushi Nagata Janelle Reinelt Heike Roms Nehad Selaiha Melissa Sihra Juha Sihvola Joanne Tompkins Denise Varney and Farah Yeganeh

Fitness Costs and Benefits of Female Song Michelle L. Hall, Naomi E. Langmore, 2017-09-11 Bird song traditionally regarded as primarily a male trait is in fact widespread among female songbirds and was probably present in the ancestor of modern songbirds Odom et al 2014 Nature Communications These recent findings challenge the view that sexual dimorphism in the expression and complexity of song is largely the outcome of sexual selection on males It is now clear that understanding the evolution of bird song requires explaining variation within and among species in the expression and complexity of female song To do this we need a better understanding of the nature of variation in female song in different contexts and systems as well as the fitness costs and benefits of variation in the expression and complexity of female song This Research Topic draws together current research on female song with the goal of understanding the fitness costs and benefits of the diversity of female singing behaviour apparent among songbirds It includes articles ranging from single species studies investigating how female song varies with context and contrasts with male song to comparative analyses exploring relationships between female song and ecological social and other factors as well as opinion pieces
