Mom Entitled CCP Berry, 2025-06-22 She began life in a Japanese prison camp in Indonesia a child shaped by hunger fear and silence After the war she was uprooted first to the Netherlands a country she had never seen but was told to call home and then again to Canada where survival meant starting over once more Each move left invisible scars building a woman who carried both beauty and unhealed wounds Mom Entitled is a memoir of that complicated woman adored impossible and emotionally unreachable Her best friend later revealed that she had once been given a diagnosis of borderline personality disorder but she never pursued it At the time I thought of her instead as an emotionally immature parent not narcissistic because she could be deeply caring but caught in painful cycles of love and withdrawal generosity and volatility She was the ugly duckling who grew into a beauty and bellydance became her passion and her revenge against sisters who once mocked her It was both her freedom and her armour a way of reclaiming herself in a world that had taken so much The book traces how war trauma does not stop with one generation It shows how the psychological weight of uprooting from Indonesia to the Netherlands to Canada seeped into family life shaping children as much as it had shaped her Silence sudden shifts and the need to survive became the language of our home And yet with distance what remains for me is not anger but empathy Four months after writing I see her less as the impossible figure of my childhood and more as a survivor of impossible circumstances Mom Entitled closes not in bitterness but in recognition of a woman who endured who danced and who carried silence and sadness she could never escape
