Disturbed Earth Reggie Nadelson, 2009-05-26 Winter 2003 Still reeling from 9/11 New York City is hit by the worst blizzard in years. On the verge of making peace with his own turbulent life, Artie Cohen, Reggie Nadelson's Russian-born angst-ridden detective, is called to investigate a pile of blood-soaked children's clothes found on a Brooklyn beach. Artie is reluctantly drawn into a case that involves the death of one child, the strange disappearance of another, and growing anxiety about the fate of his own godson, all against the backdrop of a city already on edge. In his increasingly obsessive search for the missing child, Artie veers from posh parties on the Lower West Side of Manhattan to the remote coastal suburbs of Brooklyn, among the Russian community he thought he had left behind, only to discover truths that will haunt him in more ways than one. Like Sara Paretsky in Chicago and George Pelecanos in Washington D.C., Nadelson, a native New Yorker, captures the character of New York City and its outer boroughs. Disturbed Earth is both a riveting thriller and an insightful portrait of a post-9/11 New York. Words, Worlds, and Material Girls

Bonnie S. McElhinny, 2008-12-10 This wide-ranging volume explores how gender and language are used and transformed to discuss, enact, and project social differences in light of global economic and political changes in the late nineteenth, twentieth, and early twenty-first centuries. It presents analyses of language and gender from a broad spectrum of national contexts: Catalonia, Canada, China, India, Japan, Nigeria, Vietnam, Philippines, Tonga, and the United States. Case studies consider language and gender in changing workplaces, schools, and immigrant integration workshops, as well as in new and emerging sites for consumption and the production of identity. They also analyze the changing meanings of multilingualism and the construction of ideologies about gender and language in colonial and postcolonial national ideologies. The papers engage with and contribute to theoretical conceptualizations of globalization, cosmopolitanism, postcolonialism, transnationalism, and public spheres by drawing on a variety of sociolinguistic analytic strategies: variation analysis, media analysis, interactional sociolinguistics, ethnography of speaking, sociology of language, colonial discourse analysis. Agony of Hercules or a Farewell to Democracy (Notes of a Stranger)

Alexander Maistrovoy, 2016-01-05 Democracy From Triumph to Suicide What type of society most corresponds to the ideals of justice and rule of law? The answer seemed obvious: democracy. Today it seems a paradox, but ancient thought, humanism, as well as rational thinking with undisguised skepticism are related to democracy. They knew how easy and quickly it transformed into ochlocracy. However, founding fathers of Liberal Democracy like de Tocqueville thought that rationalism combined with a compulsory educational system, improvement of living standards, and an advanced legal system would become a guarantee of democratic development. Unfortunately, these supporting columns are fatally destroyed today. The idea of equal opportunities was changed by unrestrained craving for consumption and hedonism. We see people completely disconnected from their culture, their own country, or the world. The Principle of the art of goodness and fairness by Celsus the Younger the Principle of pursuing and obtaining happiness and safety of The Virginia Declaration of Rights of 1776 and the Principle of Utility by Bentham and Mill have been perverted and emasculated to the extent that they have just stopped working The growing Red Green Brown Alliance threatens not only Democracy but states of the West But the most sinister metamorphosis has occurred to the concept of human rights Human rights organizations have become the new church following own ideological orientation and financial interests It canonizes human rights but despises the human as a creature that is creative intelligent and responsible for its own destiny It has a distinct racist odor and shows contempt toward minorities religious and sexual Astonishingly having lost its internal stability democracy seeks for an unrestrained expansion We observe the silliness worthy of new Moliere s pen democratic elections between tribes practicing a ritual cannibalism as in Papua New Guinea between tribal clans like in Pakistan between religious zealots as this happened in Egypt Wasn t it a cruel mockery of History that the EU that was on the verge of collapse virtually awarded itself the Nobel Peace Prize as it was done by senile Soviet leaders that the President of USA got the same prize just for empty slogans like Leonid Brezhnev As it often happens in History the most pure and noble idea degenerates into its opposite turning into a parody of itself
