Donovan,2014-08-15 The Allied leaders decided to conduct the cross channel invasion of Hitler s Fortress Europe in the first half of 1944 during the Tehran Conference held in November 1943 To support this invasion they also decided to implement a comprehensive deception campaign given the cover name BODYGUARD The goal of BODYGUARD was to deceive Hitler and his senior military commanders about the location and timing of Allied offensive actions Under the BODYGUARD umbrella operation FORTITUDE was specifically designed to support the invasion of Normandy FORTITUDE consisted of two primary operations FORTITUDE NORTH was designed to convince the Germans that the Allied invasion in 1944 would come through Norway and Sweden vice France FORTITUDE SOUTH was developed to convince Hitler and his staff that the primary invasion site in France would be Pas de Calais and other potential invasion sites such as Normandy were only diversions The BODYGUARD and associated FORTITUDE operations were quite successful in fixing German forces causing reserves to be committed piecemeal and basically paralyzing Hitler s decision making ability during the time of the Normandy landings and for weeks afterwards The principles of current joint deception doctrine were applicable and utilized by the deception planners of General Eisenhower s staff long before the current Joint doctrine Joint Publication 3 58 Joint Doctrine for Military Deception was ever written

Strategic and Operational Deception in the Second World War Michael I. Handel, 2012-12-06 First Published in 1987 New information obtained from the declassification of Ultra intercepts and other Second World War documents as well as from recent scholarly research has credited Allied deception operations with an even more important contribution to winning the war than was previously supposed. Yet deception is only one factor in the achievement of victory; it cannot guarantee success. It must be fully understood and exploited by the highest levels of command. Most histories of deception operations during the Second World War have focused on those that were successful. Instances in which deception operations failed to achieve their objectives are discussed by John Campbell who describes an early attempt to convince the Germans that the Allies intended to invade at Pas de Calais in the summer of 1943 and by Katherine Herbig who gives the first detailed description of US deception operations in the Pacific. Klaus Jürge Moir questions the actual effectiveness of deception operations against the Germans. He argues that many successes attributed to the Allies' use of deception were in fact achieved by independent considerations on the German side. Professor Moir builds a particularly strong case in challenging the success of Operation Fortitude North in which the Allies tried to divert German troops to Norway before invading Normandy. Although very little is known of Soviet deception operations on the Eastern Front, it must be remembered that they were conducted on a much larger scale than those of either the British in Europe or the Americans in the Pacific. Colonel David Glantz's account of Soviet deception and covert activities offers a version of the historiography of the war between the USSR and Germany which may explain some of the monumental German failures. Tom Cubbage not only contributes a synthesis of the primary and secondary sources available on the deception operations preceding Overlord but also reviews the so-called Hesketh Report, Fortitude: A History of Strategic Deception in North Western Europe, April 1943 to May 1945. Colonel Roger Hesketh's official report on Allied deception operations against the Germans in north-west Europe, which was declassified in 1976 yet remains unpublished, indicates that Professor Muller's suspicions that the Allies overestimated the impact of Fortitude are unfounded. Edited and with a comprehensive introduction by Michael Handel, these important and original studies put the entire deception effort during the Second World War into a more balanced and accurate perspective. Netherlands Annual Review of Military Studies 2017 Paul A.L. Ducheine, Frans P.B. Osinga, 2017-07-14. With a foreword by Major General Nico Geerts, Commander Netherlands Defence Academy Breda. The Netherlands International conflict resolution increasingly involves the use of non-military power and non-kinetic capabilities alongside military capabilities in the face of hybrid threats. In this book, counter measures to those threats are addressed by academics with both practical and theoretical experience and knowledge, providing strategic and operational insights into non-kinetic conflict resolution and on the use of power to influence, affect, deter or coerce states and non-state actors. This volume in the NL ARMS series deals with the non-kinetic capabilities to address international crises and conflicts and, as always, views matters from a global perspective. Included are chapters on the promise, practice and challenges of non-kinetic instruments of power, the instrumentality of soft power, information as a power instrument and manoeuvring in the information environment, Russia's use of deception and misinformation in conflict, applying counter marketing techniques to fight ISIL using statistics to profile terrorists and employing tools such as Actor and Audience Analysis Such diverse subjects as lawfare the Law of Armed Conflict rules for non kinetic cyber attacks navigation warfare GPS spoofing maritime interception operations and finally as a prerequisite innovative ways for intelligence collection in UN Peacekeeping in Mali come up for discussion The book will provide both professionals such as foreign policy makers and those active in the military services academics at a master level and those with an interest in military law and the law of armed conflict with useful and up to date insights into the wide range of subjects that are contained within it Paul A L Ducheine and Frans P B Osinga are General Officers and full professors at the Faculty of Military Sciences of the Netherlands Defence Academy in Breda The Netherlands Specific to this volume in the Series Written by academics with both practical and theoretical experience Addresses counter measures to hybrid crises Offers both strategic and operational insights to non kinetic conflict resolution Doctrine for Joint Operations United States.
