Abstract

This paper offers a comparative analysis of internationalization policy between two distinct nations entrenched in unique sociopolitical and economic cultures, namely Japan and the United States of America (U.S.A.). How do different policy-making processes impact internationalization policy in practice? While Japan's internationalization policy is clearly articulated at the national level, the U.S. does not have a national higher education internationalization policy that emanates from the federal government. Therefore, in this study we analyzed macro-level data from three distinct policy-making sectors to identify U.S. national policy. Our analysis identifies the policy-making process in each nation and elucidates how internationalization policy unfolded in both cases. Second, we compare the development of higher education internationalization policy efforts in the two countries, sequencing events, factors, and rationales that impacted national policy. This approach allowed us to compare the implications of having a centralized versus a pluralistic internationalization policy-making process in the 2000s. Our research shows that, in practical terms, there is more variation in higher education internationalization policy in the U.S. than in Japan. In both countries, policy dynamics were influenced by social and economic factors, and political factors influenced policy in the U.S. An academic and humanitarian rationale for internationalization policy was not central to the essence of the policy in either country.

Introduction

The 21st century is largely characterized by the effects of globalization, a process that has escalated through systematic regrouping and alignment of nation states since the Second World War (de Wit, 2002; Giddens, 2002). Globalization is a multi-pronged process that touches on economics, culture, and political processes as well as on transnational migration (Ritzer & Robinson, 2008). In 2020, the COVID-19 pandemic underscored the multi-pronged effects University in 1957 starting its coverage of theses with the academic year 1955. Beginning with Volume 13 the printing and dissemination phases of the activity were transferred to University Microfilms Xerox of Ann Arbor Michigan with the thought that such an arrangement would be more beneficial to the academic and general scientific and technical community. After five years of this joint undertaking we had concluded that it was in the interest of all concerned if the printing and distribution of the volumes were handled by an international publishing house to assure improved service and broader dissemination. Hence starting with Volume 18 Masters Theses in the Pure and Applied Sciences has been disseminated on a worldwide basis by Plenum Publishing Corporation of New York and in the same year the coverage was broadened to include Canadian universities. All back issues can also be ordered from Plenum. We have reported in Volume 29 thesis year 1984 a total of 12 637 theses titles from 23 Canadian and 202 United States universities. We are sure that this broader base for these titles reported will greatly enhance the value of this important annual reference work. While Volume 29 reports theses submitted in 1984 on occasion certain universities do report theses submitted in previous years but not reported at the time.

Statistical Models for Strategic Management Michel Ghertman, Jacques Obadia, Jean-Luc

Arregle,2013-03-14 Statistical Models for Strategic Management offers practical guidance in the use of statistical models for empirical research in strategic management The contributions in this edited volume come from distinguished researchers in the field of Strategic Management and provide illustration of most statistical models that are relevant for strategy research The book is divided into four major topical areas Strategic Analysis and Firm Strategies The Resource Based View of the Firm Transaction Costs Agency Theory and the Boundaries of the Firm and Corporate Alliances Acquisitions and Networks

Organizational Science Abroad C.A.B., Yg. Osigweh,2013-11-11 Organizing consists of making other people work We do this by manipulating symbols words exhortations memos charts signs of status We expect these symbols to have the desired effects on the people concerned The success of our organizing activities depends on whether the others do attach to our symbols the meanings we expect them to Whether or not they do so is a function of what I have sometimes called the programs in their minds their learned ways of thinking feeling and reacting in short a function of their culture The assumption that organizations could be culture free is naive and myopic it is based on a misunderstanding of the very act of organizing Certainly few people who have ever worked abroad will make this assumption The dependence of organizations on their people's mental programs does not mean of course that we do not find many similarities across organizations Some characteristics of human mental programming are universal others are shared by most people in a continent a country a region an industry a scientific discipline or even a gender

European Union Direct Investment in China Maria Do Céu Esteves,2003-01-23 China's immersion into the world trading system is the key development in international trade over the last few years This intriguing book focuses on the attempts of European firms to crack this potentially huge market

Handbook of Organizational Change and Innovation Marshall Scott Poole,Andrew H. Van de Ven,2004-08-26 In a world of organizations that are in constant change scholars have long sought to understand and explain how they change This book introduces research methods that are specifically designed to support the development and evaluation of

organizational process theories The authors are a group of highly regarded experts who have been doing collaborative research on change and development for many years      The Sociology of the Economy Frank Dobbin,2004-02-12 The new economic sociology is based on the theory that patterns of economic behavior are shaped by social factors The Sociology of the Economy brings together a dozen path breaking empirical studies that explore how social forces such as shifts in political power the influence of social networks or the spread of new economic ideas shape real world economic behavior The contributors all leading economic sociologists show these social forces at work in a diverse range of international settings and historical circumstances Examining why so many American banks followed industry leaders into foreign markets in the 1970s only to pull back within a few years Mark Mizruchi and Gerald Davis suggest that social emulation rather than rational calculation led banks to expand globally before there was any evidence that foreign offices paid off William Schnepfer and Mauro Guill show that despite the international diffusion of the hostile takeover during the last twenty years the practice became widespread only in countries with political institutions conducive to buying and selling entire companies Thus during the 1990s the United States and United Kingdom saw hundreds of hostile takeover bids while Germany had only a handful and Japan just one Deborah Davis explores resistance to the globalization of Western ideas about real estate ownership particularly in China where the government has had little success in instituting a market system in place of traditional family based real estate inheritance And Richard Scott examines the controversial rise of managed care in the American healthcare system as the quest for market efficiency collided with the ideal of equity in access to health care Together these studies provide compelling evidence that economic behavior is not ruled by immutable laws and is but one realm of social behavior with its own conventions roles and social structures The Sociology of the Economy demonstrates the vitality of empirical research in the field of economic sociology and the power of sociological models in explaining how markets operate

Innovation Strategy and Firm Performance Nanja Strecker,2009-08-04 Nanja Strecker answers the question to what extent there is a relation between innovation strategy and a firm performance The comprehensive empirical research consists of primary research complemented with secondary data and capital market data making the outcome highly reliable

Corporate Level Strategy Olivier Furrer,2016-04-13 The challenges faced by diversified corporations firms that operate in more than one industry or market have changed over the years In this new edition Olivier Furrer helps students of corporate strategy to consider the impact of critical changes in resources businesses and headquarters roles on the firm s ability for establishing and sustaining corporate advantage New to this edition are stimulating pedagogical features and additional material such as a new chapter on the theoretical foundations of multibusiness firms along with a host of new examples from across the world A companion website supplements the book providing PowerPoint slides a test bank of questions and lists of suggested case studies      Fairness and Division of Labor in Market Societies Hyeong-ki

Kwon,2004 Contrary to the explanations offered by the theory of non reflexive path dependent institutionalism the U S and the German automotive industries undertook strikingly similar patterns of industry modification under tough international competition during the 1990s departing from their traditional national patterns By investigating the processes of the U S and German adjustments the author critically reconsiders the prevalent paradigms of political economy and comes to the conclusion that the evidence does not confirm the neoliberal paradigm In order to better account for the recomposition of new market relations which the author terms converging but non liberal and diverging but not predetermined markets he proposes an alternative model of politics among reflexive agents emphasizing different kinds of problem solving practices among those reflexive agents He argues that different forms and regimes of market are established in the process of recomposition in which agents reflect upon not only market rationality but also upon their own institutions creating new norms
