Olivier, 2020-03-23 Expertise in every classroom should be the norm not the exception We have all had that magical teacher who we remember years later We remember how this teacher made us believe we could do anything The mythical experts exist and have much to teach us in our quest to build a powerhouse education system Unfortunately forty years of research and over 25 years of reform models have led to few changes in the teaching profession and in the overall outcomes in education Both national and international research demonstrates expertise in teaching can be clearly defined and developed Countries around the world have successfully revamped their systems to develop and support expert teachers While we grapple with failed value added models and are beginning to understand linkage to single achievement test scores leaves out the impact teachers have upon the students peers and the culture as a whole We have erected barriers in the form of scripted curricula overuse of testing and failed professional development models Yet some teachers overcome all the barriers and develop expertise These teachers find avenues of development either in small pockets of peers or individually While other countries are developing experts in mass numbers the United States is creating such teachers in very small pockets Examining the thinking processes and practice of these teachers offers a glimpse into what we should desire in every classroom in every school This book bridges both research and practical elements We believe expert teachers desire both We often discuss the disconnect between research and practice This book is intended to bridge both academic expectations and practitioner expectations We believe the academic community must make research accessible and user friendly to practitioners and practitioners should be at the forefront of research discussions We must blend the ivory towers of academia with the daily work in our schools if we are to create world class systems Expert teachers are both academic researchers and critical practitioners Reform movements are showing little progress We need to redefine the profession

Active Teaching and Learning Strategies Rock Moore, Michelle A. Moore, 2004 Active Teaching and Active Learning Strategies Creating a Blueprint for Success is the cumulative result of a year of reflecting asking and listening to questions and comments that many have concerning the education of our youth The book's genesis however started many years ago as the state of California along with many other states embraced a standards based accountability system This accountability has now been coupled with the recent addition of The No Child Left Behind Legislation In a real sense we are entering both the best and worst of times I say this because of the effects of high stakes testing and the requirement that all students reach high levels of proficiency which admittedly are very lofty goals For this to be realized changes will be required in teaching and assessment as well as a more concentrated focus on student learning The instructional design introduced in this book advocates four components academic social collaborative contextual and cognitive developmental These components work in tandem with Active Teaching and Learning Strategies Combined they form a student responsive instructional methodology which optimizes student success and academic achievement We wanted to create a book that demonstrated to those of us in the field of education the value of looking at academic standards with data about our students and reflecting on how this information should influence our choices concerning instructional practices and our perceptions about the students that we are entrusted with The focus of this endeavor is to see all students achieve and succeed and to keep passion and compassion at the heart of all that we do It is the premise of this book that the difference between effective and outstanding teachers are that outstanding teachers care know how to utilize data practice active teaching strategies and promote the active learning of students Together these characteristics became the design and course of action that Created a Blueprint for Success
