Corporate Management of Diversified Companies - Information Demand and Information Processing Nicolas Rabener, 2005-08-18 Inhaltsangabe Abstract The ultimate management challenge is said to be the management of a conglomerate Diversified companies especially conglomerates are complex organisations that in the larger cases resemble full blown economies rather than firms They develop internal capital markets with billion dollar budgets enormous internal labour markets and often a decent amount of bureaucracy The International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation ITT owned more than 150 businesses in the 1960s ranging from electronics to insurance companies with operations across the globe The architect of ITT Harold Greener once acquired 20 unrelated business in a single month and was strongly convinced that sound management principles could be applied to any type of business He believed that information was key to good management During his reign earnings increased a 100 consecutive quarters and seemed to support this management belief In the late 1960s earnings did not increase any longer and the stock price lost significantly in value By the early 1980s the company was already heavily involved in deconglomeration and had divested more than a 100 businesses ITT was not the only diversified company in the 1980s that was on the search for focus The conglomerate strategy went out of fashion with investors due to poor performance associated with this strategy The result was a conglomerate discount of an average 15 percent on the stock market that persists until today Despite this investor aversion some companies continued the conglomerate path and managed to be highly successful at the same time General Electric has a
