Street Foods Urban Food And Employment In Developing Countries:

Street Foods Irene Tinker,1997 This study spans 15 years of research in several developing countries on the street food industry The author discusses Public Policy issues of nutritional standards sanitation and regulation that affect this business

Promises and challenges of the informal food sector in developing countries ,2007 Street Foods Irene Tinker,1997-03-27 Street foods are sold in almost every country in the world Many urban and rural people depend on them for one or more meals each day This book explores this world of entrepreneurs in developing countries When all of the participants in the delivery are counted including local farmers food processors and street vendors one realizes the enormous size of this industry Research conducted by the authors with vendors local community leaders and public health officials worked not only to collect data but to raise the hygiene of the food that is sold Street Foods Artemis P.

Simopoulos,Ramesh Venkataramana Bhat,2000 This publication focuses on street foods in selected developed and developing countries including information on nutritional economic safety and regulatory aspects and comparing consumption patterns as well as the profiles of the street food vendor in different cultures Street foods are inexpensive and available foods that in many countries form an integral part of the diet because they are consumed with regularity and consistency across all income groups but particularly among the urban poor and schoolchildren The street food trade is large and complex providing an important means of generating income particularly for women and it is an affordable source of food for many millions of people Street foods have therefore been considered as a way of reducing problems of urban food insecurity and as a possible vehicle for micronutrient supplementation Scientists and policy makers in the areas of international health nutrition food and trade as well as physicians nutritionists dietitians food scientists anthropologists sociologists will particularly benefit from this publication Nutrition and Health in a Developing World Saskia de Pee,Douglas Taren,Martin

W. Bloem,2017-02-13 This third edition reviews the epidemiology policies programs and outcome indicators that are used to determine improvements in nutrition and health that lead to development This greatly expanded third edition provides policy makers nutritionists students scientists and professionals with the most recent and up to date knowledge regarding major health and nutritional problems in developing countries Policies and programs that address the social and economic determinants of nutrition and health are now gaining in importance as methods to improve the status of the most vulnerable people in the world This volume provides the most current research and strategies so that policy makers program managers researchers and students have knowledge and resources that they can use to advance methods for improving the public s health and the development of nations The third edition of Nutrition and Health in Developing Countries takes on a new context where the word developing is now a verb and not an adjective Transforming Urban Food Systems in Secondary Cities in Africa Liam Riley,Jonathan Crush,2022-11-02 Countries across Africa are rapidly transitioning from rural to urban societies The UN projects that 60% of people living in Africa will be in urban areas by 2050 with the urban population on the continent tripling over the next 50 years The challenge of building inclusive and sustainable cities in the context of rapid urbanization is arguably the critical development issue of the 21st Century and creating food secure cities is key to promoting health prosperity equity and ecological sustainability The expansion of Africa s urban population is taking place largely in secondary cities these are broadly defined as cities with fewer than half a million people that are not national political or economic centres The implications of secondary urbanization have recently been described by the Cities Alliance as a real knowledge gap requiring much additional research not least because it poses new intellectual challenges for academic researchers and governance challenges for policy makers International researchers coming from multiple points of view including food studies urban studies and sustainability studies are starting to heed the call for further research into the implications for food security of rapidly growing secondary cities in Africa This book will combine this research and feature comparable case studies intersecting trends and shed light on broad concepts including governance sustainability health economic development and inclusivity This is an open access book

Development and Security in Southeast Asia Carolina G. Hernandez,2019-07-15 This title was first published in 2003 This three volume set examines the relationship between government and civil society in their efforts to define and pursue security Including the results of an extensive research program each volume is organized around one of the three principal themes environment people and globalization supplying compelling evidence of the tension between economic change and human well being Challenging the conventional wisdom about the beneficial results of economically induced change this first volume suggests that too often the mismanagement of development jeopardizes the security of individuals families communities and possibly the state by harming the very environment which is required to sustain both people and their economic existence Bringing together an international group of scholars from a variety of disciplines this volume is particularly relevant for academic and general research communities in the areas of social economic political and security matters of Southeast Asia Challenges and Change in Middle America Katie Willis, Cathy McIlwaine, 2014-09-25 A comprehensive introduction to the important economic social and political processes and development issues in this extremely popular region The Central American nations and those of the Caribbean including Guyana Surinam and French Guiana on the mainland share many historical processes as well as experiencing similar development problems today These include European colonialism structural adjustment small size reliance on primary production influence of the United States and moves towards democratisation While Mexico is obviously a much larger country in area economy and population terms it is included in this volume because of its close ties to the other countries in the region through processes such as trade and migration Sidewalk City Annette Miae Kim, 2015-05-27 For most the term public space conjures up images of large open areas community centers for meetings and social events the ancient Greek agora for political debates green parks for festivals and recreation In many of the world's major cities however public spaces like these are not a part of the everyday lives of the public Rather business and social lives have always been conducted along main roads and sidewalks With increasing urban growth and density primarily from migration and immigration rights to the sidewalk are being hotly contested among pedestrians street vendors property owners tourists and governments around the world With Sidewalk City Annette Miae Kim provides the first multidisciplinary case study of sidewalks in a distinctive geographical area She focuses on Ho Chi Minh City Vietnam a rapidly growing and evolving city that throughout its history her multicultural residents have built up alternative legitimacies and norms about how the sidewalk should be used Based on fieldwork over 15 years Kim developed methods of spatial ethnography to overcome habitual seeing and recorded both the spatial patterns and the social relations of how the city's vibrant sidewalk life is practiced In Sidewalk City she transforms this data into an imaginative array of maps progressing through a primer of critical cartography to unveil new insights about the importance and potential of this quotidian public space This richly illustrated and fascinating study of Ho Chi Minh City's sidewalks shows us that it is possible to have an aesthetic sidewalk life that is inclusive of multiple publics aspirations and livelihoods particularly those of migrant vendors

Contemporary Issues in Development Economics B. N. Ghosh, 2001-04-12 This brand new collection of articles looks at both traditional concerns in economic development such as aid debt and the role of the IMF but also at gender brain drain military expenditure and postcolonial theory Controversies in Science and Technology Daniel Lee Kleinman, Karen A. Cloud-Hansen, Jo Handelsman, 2014-08-01 When it comes to any current scientific debate there are more than two sides to every story Controversies in Science and Technology Volume 4 analyzes controversial topics in science and technology infrastructure ecosystem management food security and plastics and health from multiple points of view The editors have compiled thought provoking essays from a variety of experts from academia and beyond creating a volume that addresses many of the issues surrounding these scientific debates Part I of the volume discusses infrastructure and the real meaning behind the term in today's society Essays address the central issues that motivate current discussion about infrastructure including writing on the vulnerability to disasters Part II titled Food Policy will focus on the challenges of feeding an ever growing world and the costs of not doing so Part III features essays on chemicals and environmental health and works to define safety as it relates to today's scientific community The book's final section examines ecosystem management In the end Kleinman Cloud Hansen and Handelsman provide a multifaceted volume that will be appropriate for anyone hoping to understand arguments surrounding several of today's most important scientific controversies

Food system innovations for healthier diets in low and middle-income countries de Brauw, Alan, Van den berg, Marrit, Brouwer, Inge D., Snoek, Harriette, Vignola, Raffaele, Melesse, Mequanint B., Lochetti, Gaia, Van Wagenberg, Coen, Lundy, Mark, Maître d'Hôtel, Eloide, Ruben, Ruerd, 2019-03-12 Malnutrition in all its forms is a major challenge everywhere in the world and particularly in low and middle income countries To reduce malnutrition innovations in food systems are needed to both provide sufficient options for consumers to obtain diets with adequate nutritional value and to help consumers make conscious and unconscious choices to choose healthier diets A potential solution to this challenge is food systems innovations designed to lead to healthier diets In this paper we lay out a multidisciplinary framework for both identifying and analyzing innovations in food systems that can lead to improvements in the choices available to consumers and their diets from a health perspective The framework identifies entry points for the design of potential food systems innovations highlighting potential synergies feedback and tradeoffs within the food system The paper concludes by providing examples of potential innovations and describes future research that can be developed to support the role of food systems in providing healthier diets
