Street Life in Renaissance Italy Fabrizio Nevola, 2020-11-24 A radical new perspective on the dynamics of urban life in Renaissance Italy The cities of Renaissance Italy comprised a network of forces shaping both the urban landscape and those who inhabited it In this illuminating study those complex relations are laid bare and explored through the lens of contemporary urban theory providing new insights into the various urban centers of Italy's transition toward modernity The book underscores how the design and structure of public space during this transformative period were intended to exercise a certain measure of authority over its citizens citing the impact of architecture and street layout on everyday social practices The ensuing chapters demonstrate how the character of public space became increasingly determined by the habits of its residents for whom the streets served as the backdrop of their daily activities Highlighting major hubs such as Rome Florence and Bologna as well as other lesser known settings Street Life in Renaissance Italy offers a new look at this remarkable era

Streetlife Keith G. Laufenberg Laufenberg, 2014-07-18 Streetlife is a collection of stories that focuses on and vividly reveals the harsh realities of life on the streets in America It shows the edges of those streets and how we can easily fall through the cracks in the so-called free market Capitalist system to end up there with little more than one unfortunate circumstance Here then is an offering of stories that interweave humor with the all too often coincidental and sometimes pathetic circumstances that land so many of these characters down a dark road to oblivion These offerings as well as the rest will keep the reader on edge until the story and book are finished

Environment and Development Human Settlements Programme, 2002 Free at Last? Juan Jose Battle, Michael Bennett, Anthony J. Lemelle, Jr., W E B Du Bois said that the problem of the twentieth century is the problem of the color line. It has been one hundred years since Du Bois made that prescient statement which naturally leads to the question: What is the problem of the twenty-first century? In this anthology the authors address a wide range of topics: race, gender, class, sexual orientation, globalism, migration, health, politics, culture, and urban issues from a diversity of disciplinary perspectives. Paul Attewell, David Lavin, Thurston Domina, and Tania Levey examine the black middle class at the turn of the millennium. Todd C. Shaw considers how race shapes patriotism in the wake of the September 11 attacks. Robert A. Brown focuses on the growing chasm between blacks and whites with regard to views of government's obligation to address citizens' basic needs. H. Alexander Welcome details instances where white scholars have improperly analyzed black experiences. Antonio Pastrana revisits Du Bois's theories about the problems facing blacks. Joy James shows that the United States possesses the means and wealth to record and preserve or censor its slave penal discourse as part of its vast warehouse of neo-slave narratives. Ajuan Maria Mance hypothesizes that African American literature will become less consumed with exploration and documentation of interracial differences and more concerned with the relationships within ethnic groups. Rosamond S. King explores literary embodiments of the increasing prevalence of interracial relationships. Anthony J. Lemelle and Barbara Scott present a comparative historical policy analysis of the HIV/AIDS experience among African Americans. Sandra Barnes examines sociological promises and problems of the contemporary black church. Juan Battle and Natalie Bennett scrutinize the experiences of African American gays and lesbians in the context of the larger community. Verna Keith and Diane Brown assess the state of African American health in the context of social group structures. Michael Bennett looks at the problems and opportunities facing black Americans from the perspective of urban studies. Juan Battle is professor of sociology at Hunter College and the City University of New York Graduate Center. Michael Bennett is professor of English at Long Island University Brooklyn. Anthony Lemelle is professor of sociology at the University of Wisconsin Milwaukee and the editor of the Journal of African American Studies published by Transaction.
