Animals in Traditional Folk Medicine Rômulo Alves, Ierecê Lucena Rosa, 2012-09-19 People have relied on medicinal products derived from natural sources for millennia and animals have long been an important part of that repertoire nearly all cultures from ancient times to the present have used animals as a source of medicine Ingredients derived from wild animals are not only widely used in traditional remedies but are also increasingly valued as raw materials in the preparation of modern medicines Regrettably the unsustainable use of plants and animals in traditional medicine is recognized as a threat to wildlife conservation as a result of which discussions concerning the links between traditional medicine and biodiversity are becoming increasingly imperative particularly in view of the fact that folk medicine is the primary source of health care for 80% of the world's population This book discusses the role of animals in traditional folk medicine and its meaning for wildlife conservation We hope to further stimulate further discussions about the use of biodiversity and its implications for wildlife conservation strategies

Semantically Based Clinical TCM Telemedicine Systems Allan K. Y. Wong, Jackei H.K. Wong, Wilfred W. K. Lin, Tharam S. Dillon, Elizabeth J. Chang, 2015-01-23 Recent years have seen the development of two significant trends namely the adoption of some Traditional Chinese Medicine Practices into mainstream

Allopathic Western Medicine and the advent of the internet and broad band networks leading to an increased interest in the use of Telemedicine to deliver medical services In this book we see the convergence of these two trends leading to a semantically based TCM Telemedicine system that utilizes an ontology to provide sharable knowledge in the TCM realm to achieve this The underpinning research required the development of a three layer architecture and an Ontology of the TCM knowledge As TCM knowledge like all medical knowledge is not frozen in time it was important to develop an approach that would allow evolution of the Ontology when new evidence became available In order for the system to be practically grounded it was important to work with an industry partner PuraPharm Group HerbMiners Informatics Limited This partnership was initiated through Professor Allan Wong and the Chairman of PuraPharm Group Mr Abraham Chan This led to the system being utilized in more than 20 Mobile Clinics in Hong Kong and 300 Hospitals in China In order for these different deployments of the system to be coherent with the main core Ontology it was necessary for us to develop an Ontology Driven Software System Generation approach
