Stress And Coping In Infancy And Childhood:

Stress and Coping in Infancy and Childhood Tiffany M. Field, Philip McCabe, Neil Schneiderman, 2013-02-01 The fourth volume based on the annual University of Miami symposia on stress and coping this new addition to the series is the first to focus on developmental and clinical stressors during infancy and childhood While developmental stressors such as early separation and stranger anxiety novelty stress and fear evoked personal distress arise during normal development clinical stressors result from certain conditions that are relatively common in infancy and early childhood such as premature birth and respiratory disease Various therapies are discussed for example relaxation and massage that can alleviate the stress associated with psychiatric conditions in childhood and adolescence including depression and adjustment disorder The result is an integration of diverse research and theory on the psychophysiological developmental and psychosocial aspects of stress and coping in animals and humans by some of the leading researchers in the field

Stress, Coping, and Resiliency in Children and Families E. Mavis Hetherington, Elaine A. Blechman, 2014-02-25 Concern with stress and coping has a long history in biomedical psychological and sociological research The inadequacy of simplistic models linking stressful life events and adverse physical and psychological outcomes was pointed out in the early 1980s in a series of seminal papers and books The issues and theoretical models discussed in this work shaped much of the subsequent research on this topic and are reflected in the papers in this volume The shift has been away from identifying associations between risks and outcomes to a focus on factors and processes that contribute to diversity in response to risks Based on the Family Research Consortium's fifth summer institute this volume focuses on stress and adaptability in families and family members The papers explore not only how a variety of stresses influence family functioning but also how family process moderates and mediates the contribution of individual and environmental risk and protective factors to personal adjustment They reveal the complexity of current theoretical models research strategies and analytic approaches to the study of risk resiliency and vulnerability along with the central role risk family process and adaptability play in both normal development and childhood psychopathology
