Stress, Coping, and Resiliency in Children and Families E.

Mavis Hetherington, Elaine A. Blechman, 2014-02-25 Concern with stress and coping has a long history in biomedical psychological and sociological research The inadequacy of simplistic models linking stressful life events and adverse physical and psychological outcomes was pointed out in the early 1980s in a series of seminal papers and books The issues and theoretical models discussed in this work shaped much of the subsequent research on this topic and are reflected in the papers in this volume The shift has been away from identifying associations between risks and outcomes to a focus on factors and processes that contribute to diversity in response to risks Based on the Family Research Consortium's fifth summer institute this volume focuses on stress and adaptability in families and family members The papers explore not only how a variety of stresses influence family functioning but also how family process moderates and mediates the contribution of individual and environmental risk and protective factors to personal adjustment They reveal the complexity of current theoretical models research strategies and analytic approaches to the study of risk resiliency and vulnerability along with the central role risk family process and adaptability play in both normal development and childhood psychopathology

Handbook of Child Psychopathology Thomas H. Ollendick, 2013-11-11 In our first edition of the Handbook in 1983 we noted that child psychopathology should no longer be viewed simply as a downward extension of adult psychopathology Rather we suggested that children must be viewed as children not as miniature adults and that a merger of clinical child psychology and developmental psychology must occur in order for this objective to be realized Now 6 years later we are sufficiently encouraged to assert that this synthesis at least on a conceptual level is well under way Yet much growth remains to be seen along practical lines The real test of the synthesis of these two fields of study will be evidenced on the battlefield that is the front line of clinical practice Just how integrated clinical child psychology and developmental psychology really are remains to be seen Nonetheless progress is well under way Careful attention to developmental and other contextual issues guided us in our efforts to solicit contributors for this second edition All the contributors are active researchers and clinicians in the area of child psychopathology and all are keenly aware of the subtle nuances and special considerations of clinical and developmental psychology as they relate to child behavior problems In addition all the contributors are empirically minded as a result the chapters are data based and represent some of the most up to date knowledge currently available However as research based knowledge is more abundant and conclusive in some topic areas than in others the chapters vary in length and scope

Social Competence in Developmental Perspective B.H. Schneider, Grazia Attili, Jacqueline Nadel, Roger P. Weissberg, 2012-12-06 What determines the focus of a researcher's interest the sources of inspiration for a study or the variables scrutinized If we were to examine the antecedents of these decisions they would surely emerge as accidents of circumstance the personal experiences of the researcher the inspiration of early mentors the influence of contemporary colleagues all tempered by the intellectual currents that nurture the researcher's hypotheses Among the accidents that mold the careers of researchers is geographic location The culture in which a research program emerges helps determine both its very subject and its method The primary purpose of this book is to assist those interested in the scientific study of children's social competence in transcending the boundaries imposed both by geography and by selective exposure to the highly diverse schools of thought that have led to interest in this field Most of these ideas were presented and exchanged at an Advanced Study Institute entitled Social Competence in Developmental Perspective held in Savoie France in July 1988 This Institute was attended by scholars from France England Northern Ireland Germany Italy Norway Spain Portugal Netherlands Canada the United States and Brazil Those who participated will recognize that the metamorphosis from lecture to chapter has necessitated many changes In order to accommodate the reader who may be unfamiliar with the field more attention has been paid here to identifying the theoretical contexts of the research described
