Talking And Learning:

The Meaning Makers Gordon Wells, 2009-08-18 The Meaning Makers is about children's language and literacy development at home and at school. Based on the Bristol Study Language at Home and at School which the author directed, it follows the development of a representative sample of children from their first words to the end of their primary schooling. It contains many examples of their experience of language in use both spoken and written, recorded in naturally occurring settings in their homes and classrooms and shows the active role that children play in their own development as they both make sense of the world around them and master the linguistic means for communicating about it. Additionally, this second edition also sets the findings of the original study in the context of recent research in the sociocultural tradition inspired by Vygotsky's work and includes examples of effective teaching drawn from the author's recent collaborative research with teachers.

Talking and Learning with Young Children Michael Jones, 2015-11-18 Children learn to talk through interaction including involvement in many thousands of conversations with adults and other children. These conversations provide the framework for exploring relationships, understanding the world and learning in its widest sense. This book explores how children learn to communicate using language, how they use language to learn and the role of adults in the process. It examines how adults can support children to learn by involving them in positive interactions, meaningful conversation and by helping them play, explore and talk with each other. The book includes examples of children and adults talking and learning together, case studies of successful approaches that support language and learning in early years settings, points for reflection and practical tasks. Informed by the author's own experience working with young children, families and practitioners and from his involvement in the England-wide Every Child a Talker (ECaT) project, it links key research findings with successful practice to inspire practitioners to develop skills when talking with children, influence how adults plan for talk in settings and gain insight into how language develops in the home.

Talking, Listening and Learning Debra Myhill, Susan Jones, Rosemary Hopper, 2005-11-16 This book looks at an issue which is at the heart of every classroom: the role that talk plays in children's learning. Drawing on a substantial research base, the book provides useful suggestions to facilitate successful talk between teachers and children to improve learning and raise standards. Through analysing the talk that goes on in primary school classrooms, the book examines the process of talk and learning in detail and shows how teachers' questions, instructions and statements can support and extend children's learning. It highlights the central influence of teacher talk on developing children's learning and looks at international perspectives in the field, including the work of Shirley Brice Heath, Douglas Barnes, Gordon Wells, Neil Mercer and Robin Alexander. This innovative book provides ideas, techniques and practical suggestions for making classroom talk effective. It is key reading for student and qualified teachers who are interested in improving learning by generating higher levels of participation and interactive talk in their classrooms.

Get Them Talking - Get Them Learning. by Alistair Bryce-Clegg Alistair Bryce-Clegg, 2014-08-01 Young children are fascinated by the world around them They have high levels of natural curiosity and a compelling desire to explore and experience EVERYTHING As children develop the skills of language and communication it is talk that helps children to make sense of those experiences by asking questions and talking about their thoughts Talk not only plays a pivotal role in helping children to understand the world around them it also enables them to learn how to make sense of the role that they play within it After all talk is just the thoughts that you have in your head coming out of your mouth If you haven't got many thoughts in your head then you won't have much to talk about Alternatively if you don't have very much experience of language and talk you will not be able to express your thoughts Our role as practitioners is to create a wealth of learning opportunities and experiences that will fill children's heads with thoughts and questions and then support them in acquiring the language to be able to communicate those thoughts to make sense of their world and be understood
