Abstract The rapid growth of digital technologies and electronic communications in academic libraries has dislocated the model of traditional library service, which was a long hold from the past century. The arrival of internet technology and the explosive growth of electronic content available on the web made the services of the academic libraries uncertain and creating challenges in rendering users services as per their requirements. This article attempts to provide a strategy for academic libraries applying principles and practices of strategic management highlighting the Ansoff matrix (model) in order to face the impediments coming in the way of providing better services to their users.

1. Introduction

The strategic library management is one of the most important alternatives to make the future design and development of the library. The systematic planning of academic library is highly essential due to rapid advances of information technology in the current era. Most of the University and college libraries are sustaining both teaching and research in their academic periphery. Strategic planning is a cooperative endeavor with the active participation of administration, faculties, students and library staff. During strategic planning, the role of the librarian is very significant as he is an educator and leader in the process. The strategic plan developed should offer a pattern that incorporates major goals, policies and actions of the institution that constitutes the whole. It helps in the allocation of resources; capitalize on relative strengths and weakness with the environment, and allocation of resources to make a stronger directional guidance to employees while also demonstrating the library's power to meet institutional goals      Strategic Management and Planning Practices in Academic Libraries in Oman, 2010      Planning in the University Library Stanton F. Biddle, 1992-10-23 Comprehensive planning has become an essential element in the management of the modern university library. The purpose of this book is to help those now engaged in this important management function by summarizing the history of academic library planning and analyzing its practice in a group of major libraries over the past several decades. The most significant changes confronting academic libraries for the past several decades have been technological, social, and economic. Strategic planning is used as the tool for making these libraries more responsive to their environments and for helping them anticipate and prepare for change. Stanton F. Biddle examines the extent to which strategic planning is being employed, analyzes the planning documents, and develops guidelines for improving the quality of future planning efforts. The volume begins with a discussion of strategic or long range planning taken from the literature of management and organizational theory. The next chapter reviews the historical development of large academic libraries and the history of the application of contemporary management theories and practices to their administrations through the 1970s. The following chapter focuses on the widespread dissatisfaction with traditional approaches to library management in the 1960s and 1970s. The next two chapters compare library planning source documents, and the final chapter concludes with recommendations.

Strategic Human Resource Planning for Academic Libraries Michael A. Crumpton, 2015-07-10 Strategic Human Resources Planning for Academic Libraries Information Technology and Organization provides an in depth discussion of human resources as a strategic element of a library organization especially as staffing needs and competencies change. The book focuses on the impact of human resource practices in a library setting, discussing several aspects including the role of human resources when the library is part of a larger organization along with information on how to identify strategic objectives that are expected and related to workforce issues. In addition, the book reviews hiring practices, reorganizations of staff, use of temps or time limited positions, and how students, volunteers, and internships can make a strategic difference overall. Chapters address competencies across different levels of employment within different library types and consider how those competencies are changing. Presents how leadership and library leaders must utilize human resources as a valuable tool for developing a strong and healthy organization. Addresses human resource tools such as job tasks analysis and the creation of equitable payroll structures. Demonstrate the use and benefit of multiple employee statuses that provide flexibility and resourcefulness to end users      Strategic Management of Information Services Sheila Corral, 2003-09-02 An in depth analysis of strategic management concepts and techniques and how they can be usefully applied to the planning and delivery of information services. Strategic Planning and Management for Library Managers Joseph R. Matthews, 2005-05-30 Libraries enter into strategic planning by a variety of routes from dynamic technology and rising costs to budget cuts and pressure for change. In this book, Joe Matthews guides library managers towards a greater understanding of the role and attendant responsibilities of strategic planning. Academic public and special librarians alike will benefit from Matthews' cogent explanations, real life examples, and time tested recommendations. In the process, Matthews addresses such intrinsic questions as: Why is it important that I add strategic thinking to my managerial arsenal? How will strategic planning benefit my library and is there more than one way to go about it? What is the best way of monitoring and updating our strategic plan for maximum effect? In each case, he debunks false impressions, attends to the goal of providing good service, and identifies at least one new way to communicate the library's strategic importance in the lives of its customers. Academic public and special librarians alike will benefit from Matthews' cogent explanations, real life examples, and time tested recommendations.
