Airline Network Development in Europe and its Implications for Airport Planning Dr Guillaume Burghouwt,2012-10-01 The ongoing deregulation and liberalization of worldwide air transport markets confronts airport planners with an increasingly problematic context On the one hand the capital intensive large scale and complex airport investments need a detailed long medium term planning of airport infrastructure Such planning requires at least predictable traffic volumes and traffic composition within the planning horizon On the other hand airline route networks are increasingly dynamic structures that frequently show discontinuous changes As a consequence the much more volatile airport traffic restricts the value of detailed traffic forecasts Volatility of airport traffic and its composition requires flexibility of airport strategies and planning processes The book explores this dilemma through a detailed study of airline network development airport connectivity and airport planning in the deregulated EU air transport market The questions the book seeks to answer are how have airlines responded to the regime changes in EU aviation with respect to the configuration of their route networks what has been the impact of the reconfiguration of airline network configurations for the connectivity of EU airports how can airport planners and airport authorities deal with the increasingly uncertain airline network behaviour in Europe

From the former president of one of America's leading universities comes a comprehensive analysis of the challenges and opportunities facing higher education in America as we enter the twenty first century In A University for the Twenty first Century James J Duderstadt discusses the array of powerful economic social and technological forces that are driving the rapid and profound change in American social institutions and universities in particular

Change has always characterized the university as it has sought to preserve and propagate the intellectual achievements the cultures and the values of our civilization However the capacity of the university to change through a process characterized by reflection reaction and consensus simply may not be sufficient to allow the university to control its own destiny Not only will social and technical change be a challenge to the American university Duderstadt says it will be the watchword for the years ahead And with change will come unprecedented opportunities for those universities with the vision the wisdom and the courage to lead in the twenty first century The real question raised by this book is not whether higher education will be transformed but rather how and by whom

James J Duderstadt is President Emeritus and University Professor of Science and Engineering University of Michigan
