

TRAIT THEORY OF PERSONALITY

The trait theory of personality suggests that individuals possess consistent patterns of behavior, emotions, and thoughts that can be categorized into specific traits.

OVERVIEW

Trait theorists believe that personalities consist of consistent and relatively stable traits. Based on this premise, personality can be understood by identifying and measuring traits using standardized assessment tools. Traits are considered to be relatively independent of each other, meaning that individuals can possess varying degrees of different traits simultaneously.

CHARACTERISTICS

Traits are characterized by:

- Consistency: Traits are consistent over various situations.
- Stability: Traits are stable over long periods of time.
- Individual Differences: Different individuals have different traits, such as extraversion and introversion.

Steinmetz, Marvin B. Sussman, 2013-11-11 The lucid straightforward Preface of this Handbook by the two editors and the comprehensive perspectives offered in the Introduction by one of them leave little for a Foreword to add It is therefore limited to two relevant but not intrinsically related points vis a vis research on marriage and the family in the interval since the first Handbook Christensen 1964 appeared namely the impact on this research of the politicization of the New Right and of the Feminist Enlightenment beginning in the mid sixties about the time of the first Handbook In the late 1930s Willard Waller noted Fifty years or more ago about 1890 most people had the greatest respect for the institution called the family and wished to learn nothing whatever about it Everything that concerned the life of men and women and their children was shrouded from the light Today much of that has been changed Gone is the concealment of the way in which life begins gone the irrational sanctity of the home The aura of sentiment which once protected the family from discussion clings to it no more We want to learn as much about it as we can and to understand it as thoroughly as possible for there is a rising recognition in America that vast numbers of its families are sick from internal frustrations and from external buffeting We are engaged in the process of reconstructing our family institutions through criticism and discussion 1938 pp 3 4
