Strategy After Deterrence:

Strategy After Deterrence Stephen J. Cimbala, 1991-01-30 The profound political changes in the USSR and Eastern Europe during 1989 have forced the United States and its Western European allies to reevaluate both their long held military strategy of nuclear deterrence and the traditional role of NATO in European affairs In this volume Stephen Cimbala considers the ways in which American military priorities will have to change now that the tangible threat to Europe has been removed exploring the options available to America and NATO given the new political and economic realities in Europe and the Soviet Union Drawing upon a rich literature of Soviet and American defense strategy Cimbala examines the structure and effectiveness of deterrence as a military strategy the relationship between conventional and nuclear weapons the likely course of future conflicts and alternative military strategies Following an introductory chapter which defines the concepts of deterrence and dissuasion and offers an overview of the changing character of European politics Cimbala reviews the political context for the development of military strategy in Europe Subsequent chapters consider the relationship between military stability and the likelihood of winning wars in their initial stages analyze the issue of deterrence during war discuss the potential for atypical wars in the future and investigate the linkages between deception and deterrence A separate chapter addresses the attempt to substitute non nuclear dissuasion for nuclear deterrence in the form of anti nuclear strategic defenses which could defeat nuclear offenses In the final chapter Cimbala summarizes his conclusions and makes some additional observations about the implications of our new view of NATO and deterrence Students of international relations foreign policy and military studies will find Cimbala's work enlightening and provocative reading

Strategic Thinking, Deterrence and the US Ballistic Missile Defense Project Reuben Steff, 2016-04-01 A systematic critical survey of American strategic thinking and the strategic culture in which it is formed In particular this book seeks to interrogate the theory and strategy of nuclear deterrence and its relationship to the concept of missile defence Drawing widely on the theoretical literature in international relations and strategic studies it identifies the key groups that have competed over America's nuclear policy post 1945 and examines how the concept of missile defence went through a process of gestation and intellectual contestation leading to its eventual legitimization in the late 1990s Steff sheds light on the individuals groups institutions and processes that led to the decision by the Bush administration to deploy a national missile defence shield Additionally Steff systematically examines the impact deployment had on the calculations of Russia and China In the process he explains that their reactions under the Bush administration have continued into the Obama era revealing that a new great power security dilemma has broken out This Steff shows has led to a decline in great power relations as a consequence

The Power of Deterrence Amir Lupovici, 2016-09-01 Why do states persist in using force to enhance their deterrent posture even though it is not clear that it is effective This book develops an innovative framework to answer this question viewing deterrence as an idea This allows the author to explain how countries institutionalize deterrence strategy and how this internalization affects policy He argues that the US and Israel have both internalized deterrence ideas and become attached to these practices For them deterrence is not just a means to advance physical security but it constitutes their very selves as deterring actors As a result being unable to deter becomes a threat to their identity evoking strong emotional responses In recognizing these dynamics the book provides a fresh perspective on the US war in Iraq 2003 and the Israeli war in Lebanon 2006 both of which can be seen as attempts to repair each country's shaken sense of self
