The Production and Marketing of Strawberries on the Eastern Shore of Maryland William Edwin Whitehouse, William Paul Walker, William James Hart, 1929     The Illustrated Strawberry Culturist Andrew Samuel Fuller, 1862     Quest for the Perfect Strawberry Herbert Baum, 2005 Baum's book provides a wealth of heretofore unavailable information on marketing in the strawberry industry. It contains invaluable insights by an insider gleaned from many years of experience. It is required reading for anyone with an interest in the industry. Dr. George Tolley, professor emeritus, University of Chicago. Quest is an important resource for anybody involved in production and marketing of strawberries. It provides a needed analysis of commodity board marketing plans but it also chronicles much history of California agriculture by recording the development of the strawberry industry from a localized fragmented small farm economy into a corporate age production system. Tom Am Rhein, strawberry grower and Vice President of Operations, Naturipe Berry Growers. The history of the California strawberry industry captured by Herb Baum must be studied to appreciate the economic dilemma of California farmers and the seemingly inadequate support of commodity boards and university research programs. Ten years from now as a new generation becomes farmers and industry leaders, Quest will be even more important. Larry Galper, retired strawberry grower and industry leader activist     Farmers' Bulletin, 1938
