Two Cultures of Policing Elizabeth Reuss-Ianni, 2011-12-31 The emergence and functioning of two competing and sometimes conflicting cultures within police departments demonstrates how competition between street cops and bosses is at the heart of the organizational dilemma of modern urban policing Unlike other works in this field that focus on the monolithic culture or familial quality of policing this study demonstrates that which might look cohesive from the point of view of outsiders has its own internal dynamics and conflicts The book shows that police departments are not immune to the conflict inherent in any large scale bureaucracy when externally imposed management schemes for increasing efficiency and effectiveness are imposed on an existing social organization Based upon two years of extensive field work in which the author covered every major aspect of policing at the precinct level in the New York City police department from manning the complaint desk to riding in squad cars Ianni shows how the organized structure of the police department is disintegrating The new Management Cop Culture is bureaucratically juxtaposed to the precinct level Street Cop Culture and bosses loyalties to the social and political networks of management cops rather than to the men on the street causes a sharp division with grave consequences for the departments The study concentrates on a series of dramatic events such as the suicide of a police officer charged with corruption a major riot and the trial of an officer accused of killing a prisoner while in police custody Ianni traces how these events affected relationships among fellow officers and between officers and bosses

Policing the Media David D. Perlmutter, 2000-02-10 Policing the Media is an investigation into one of the paradoxes of the mass mediated age Issues events and people that we see most on our television screens are often those that we understand the least David Perlmutter examined this issue as it relates to one of the most frequently portrayed groups of people on television police officers Policing the Media is a report on the ethnography of a police department derived from the author's experience riding on patrol with officers and joining the department as a reserve policeman Drawing upon interviews personal observations and the author's black and white photographs of cops and the clients Perlmutter describes the lives and philosophies of street patrol officers He finds that cops hold ambiguous attitudes toward their television comrades for much of TV copland is fantastic and preposterous Even those programs that boast gritty realism little resemble actual police work Moreover the officers perceive that the public's attitudes toward law enforcement and crime are directly and largely nefariously influenced by mass media This in turn he suggests influences the way that they themselves behave and perform on the street and that unreal and surreal expectations of them are propagated by television cop shows This cycle of perceptual influence may itself profoundly impact the contemporary criminal justice system on the street in the courts and in the hearts and minds of ordinary people

Henry,2004-04-01 In this fascinating new book Vincent Henry a 21 year veteran of the NYPD who recently retired to become a university professor explores the psychological transformations and adaptations that result from police officers encounters with death

Police can encounter death frequently in the course of their duties and these encounters may range from casual contacts with the deaths of others to the most profound and personally consequential confrontations with their own mortality. Using the survivor psychology model as its theoretical base, this insightful and provocative research ventures into a previously unexplored area of police psychology to illuminate and explore the new modes of adaptation, thought, and feeling that result from various types of death encounters in police work. The psychology of survival asserts that the psychological world of the survivor, one who has come in close physical or psychic contact with death but nevertheless managed to live, is characterized by five themes: psychic numbing, death guilt, the death imprint, suspicion of counterfeit nurturance, and the struggle to make meaning. These themes become manifest in the survivor's behavior, permeating his or her lifestyle and worldview. Drawing on extensive interviews with police officers in five nominal categories: rookie officers, patrol sergeants, crime scene technicians, homicide detectives, and officers who survived a mortal combat situation in which an assailant or another officer died, Henry identifies the impact such death encounters have upon the individual, the police organization, and the occupational culture of policing. He has produced a comprehensive and highly textured interpretation of police psychology and police behavior, bolstered by the unique insights that come from his personal experience as an officer, his intimate familiarity with the subtleties and nuances of the police culture's value and belief systems, and his meticulous research and rigorous method. Death Work provides a unique prism through which to view the individual, organizational, and social dynamics of contemporary urban policing. With a foreword by Robert Jay Lifton and a chapter devoted to the local police response to the World Trade Center attacks, Death Work will be of interest to psychologists and criminal justice experts as well as police officers eager to gain insight into their unique relationship to death. The Crime Numbers Game John A. Eterno, Eli B. Silverman, 2017-07-27 In the mid 1990s the NYPD created a performance management strategy known as Compstat. It consisted of computerized data, crime analysis, and advanced crime mapping coupled with middle management accountability and crime strategy meetings with high ranking decision makers. While initially credited with a dramatic reduction in crime, questions quickly arose. Street Cop David Spell, 2010-06-01 Street Cop is the exciting story of one man's career in Law Enforcement.
