New York in Cinematic Imagination Vojislava Filipcevic Cordes,2020-06-11 New York in Cinematic Imagination is an interdisciplinary study into urbanism and cinematic representations of the American metropolis in the twentieth century It contextualizes spatial transformations and discourse about New York during the Great Depression and the Second World War examining both imaginary narratives and documentary images of the city in film The book argues that alternating endorsements and critiques of the 1920s machine age city are replaced in films of the 1930s and 1940s by a new critical theory of agitated urban modernity articulated against the backdrop of turbulent economic and social settings and the initial practices of urban renewal in the post war period Written for postgraduates and researchers in the fields of film history and urban studies with 40 black and white illustrations to work alongside the text this book is an engaging study into cinematic representations of New York City

Downtown Ann Arbor Patti Smith,2014 In 1824 John Allen and Elisha Rumsey established the first homestead in what is now downtown Ann Arbor The story goes that the community got its name when the two founders wives both named Ann were seen lounging in a grove of trees In reality Ann Allen and Mary Ann Rumsey were never in town at the same time but how it actually was named is unimportant when considering what Ann Arbor grew into Early settlers gave the town schools an expansive courthouse a beautiful post office and streetcar lines that spanned downtown They built this town and their legacy is present in every walk up Huron Street drive down to William and Main Streets or bike ride over to Kerrytown
