Theory of Hematopoiesis Control A.M. Dygai,V.V. Zhdanov,2014-09-16 This monograph summarizes the large amount of experimental data accumulated during many years of studying the functions of the blood system and its regulatory mechanisms under the action of diverse morbid factors within the models of pathological processes e g immobilization stress blood loss inflammation cytostatic and radiation myelosuppressions experimental encephalopathies neuroses and spontaneous leucosis These data are analyzed with the understanding that hematopoietic tissue is an integrated system that can react to the challenges of both the internal and external environments This analysis helped develop the theory of hematopoiesis control describing the regularities in the work of basic subdivisions of the hematopoietic tissue under normal and pathological conditions as well as the performance and interaction of the local and long ranged control systems The monograph is recommended for Physiologists Pathophysiologists Hematologists Oncologists Pharmacologists and other professionals

TEXTBOOK OF ANIMAL BEHAVIOUR, FOURTH EDITION MANDAL, FATIK BARAN,2025-02-01 This well accepted book now in its Fourth Edition is a need based extension of the previous book The text is further enriched with more information to understand animal behaviour coherently and scientifically In the new edition the book introduces its readers with the recent topics such as eusociality social learning imitation ritualization mating sexual cannibalism gravireception and magnetoreception The book attempts to provide a reasonably suitable account of animal behaviour for undergraduate and postgraduate students Although the behaviour of animals has fascinated people for a long time behavioural biology has been introduced into syllabi very recently The study of behaviour received its important boost from the work of Charles Darwin who used the term instinct to refer to the natural behaviour of animals In the 1930s a comprehensive theory of animal behaviour emerged through the work of Konrad Lorenz and later by Niko Tinbergen Biological study of behaviour in fact came of age as a science when Lorenz Tinbergen and Karl von Frisch received the Nobel Prize for their contribution to science Observing and describing exactly what animals do is fascinating and scientific analysis of their behaviour is significant for several reasons Each species tends to have an array of stereotyped behaviours some of which are shared with related species but others are unique Ecology natural selection macroevolution microevolution and genes constitute the foundation of animal behaviour Various animal groups exhibit diverse strategies for survival and reproduction which are discussed in this book

A Sense of Self: Memory, the Brain, and Who We Are Veronica O'Keane,2021-05-25 How do our brains store and then conjure up past experiences to make us who we are A twinge of sadness a rush of love a knot of loss a whiff of regret Memories have the power to move us often when we least expect it a sign of the complex neural process that continues in the background of our everyday lives This process shapes us filtering the world around us informing our behavior and feeding our imagination Psychiatrist Veronica O Keane has spent many years observing how memory and experience are interwoven In this rich fascinating exploration she asks among other things Why can memories feel so real How are our sensations and perceptions connected with them Why is place so important in memory Are there such things as true and false memories And above all what happens when the process of memory is disrupted by mental illness O Keane uses the broken memories of psychosis to illuminate the integrated human brain offering a new way of thinking about our own personal experiences Drawing on poignant accounts that include her own experiences as well as what we can learn from insights in literature and fairytales and the latest neuroscientific research O Keane reframes our understanding of the extraordinary puzzle that is the human brain and how it changes during its growth from birth to adolescence and old age By elucidating this process she exposes the way that the formation of memory in the brain is vital to the creation of our sense of self

The Effects of Low Dose Radiation Elena Burlakova,Valeria Naiditch,2004-08-31 The papers collected in this book show the results of investigations performed by Russian scientists in the field of low dose irradiation action It is confirmed that low doses do have effects on the human organism and the environment and that the most serious consequences are observed in the far post irradiation period This branch of radiobiology which developed after the Chernobyl accident and studied its consequences is discussed in detail The main part of reviews and articles is devoted to the aspects of low dose effects on the human and animal genome and far post irradiation consequences New details of mechanisms of low dose action are shown and methods of their determination are discussed Furthermore the adaptive response of organisms and the low dose effects on the immune system are demonstrated Also the difference between protection mechanisms against low dose irradiation and against high dose irradiation is shown and proved
