Studies In Romanesque Sculpture Studies In The History Of European Art:

Medieval Art, Architecture & Archaeology at Canterbury Alixe Bovey, 2017-07-05 From the time of the foundation of its cathedral in 597 Canterbury has been the epicentre of Britain's ecclesiastical history and an exceptionally important centre for architectural and visual innovation Focusing especially but not exclusively on Christ Church cathedral this legacy is explored in seventeen essays concerned with Canterbury's art architecture and archaeology between the early Anglo Saxon period and the close of the middle ages Papers consider the relationship between architectural setting and liturgical practice and between stationary and movable fittings while fresh insights are offered into the aesthetic spiritual and pragmatic considerations that shaped the fabric of Christ Church and St Augustine's abbey alongside critical reflections on Canterbury's historiography and relationship to the wider world Taken together these studies demonstrate the richness of the surviving material and its enduring ability to raise new questions Studies in Romanesque Sculpture George Zarnecki, 1979 Professor Zarnecki is the leading authority on English medieval sculpture The present volume has assembled his major articles on Romanesque art published before 1979 These studies are primarily concerned with the changes that took place in English sculpture during the eleventh and twelfth centuries and attempt to set developments in English art over this period within a European context The volume also deals with Romanesque sculpture in France and Italy together with metalwork and woodcarving in England and includes a number of important iconographical studies The author has updated his earlier studies to incorporate the results of subsequent research and has augmented several studies with added bibliographical notes or references to more recent discoveries Additional illustrations have been added where necessary including photographs of a number of monuments which were previously unpublished Bibliography of Art and Architecture in the Islamic World (2 Vol. Set) Susan Sinclair, C. H. Bleaney, Pablo García Suárez, 2012 Following the tradition and style of the acclaimed Index Islamicus the editors have created this new Bibliography of Art and Architecture in the Islamic World The editors have surveyed and annotated a wide range of books and articles from collected volumes and journals published in all European languages except Turkish between 1906 and 2011 This comprehensive bibliography is an indispensable tool for everyone involved in the study of material culture in Muslim societies Gothic Sculpture, 1140-1300 Paul Williamson, 1995-01-01 This study examines the development of Gothic sculpture throughout Europe It discusses the most famous monuments such as the cathedrals of Chartres Amiens and Reims Westminster Abbey and the Siena Duomo and less familiar buildings in France England Italy Germany Spain and Scandinavia The Oxford History of Western Art Martin Kemp, 2000 The Oxford History of Western Art is the new authority on the development of visual culture in the West over the last 2700 years from the classical period to the end of the twentieth century OHOA is an innovative and challenging reappraisal of how the history of art can be presented and understood None of the currently available general histories of art offers the wealth of perspectives and cross media references of this book Through a carefully devised modular structure readers are given insights not only into how and why works of art were created but also how works in different media relate to each other across time. Here uniquely is not the simple linear story of art but a rich series of stories told from varying viewpoints. The founding principle of the book has been to use carefully selected groupings of pictures to give readers a sense of the visual texture of the various periods and episodes covered. The 167 illustration groups supported by explanatory text and picture captions create a sequence of visual tours not merely a procession of individually great works viewed in isolation but juxtapositions of significant images that powerfully convey a sense of the visual environments in which works of art need to be viewed in order to be understood and appreciated. The aim throughout has been to make the shape and nature of these visual presentations a stimulating and rewarding experience allowing readers to become active participants in the process of interpretation and synthesis. Another key feature of the narrative is the redefinition of traditional period boundaries. Rather than relying on conventional labels such as Medieval, Renaissance, Baroque etc, five major phases of significant historical change are established that unlock longer and more meaningful continuities. The art of classical antiquity from c 600 BC to the fall of Rome in AD 410. The establishment of visual culture in Europe from 410 to 1527, the sack of papal Rome. European visual regimes from 1527 to 1770. The era of revolutions 1770 to 1914. Modernism and after 1914 to 2000. This new framework shows how the major religious and secular functions of art have been forged, sustained, transformed, revived and revolutionized over the ages; how the institutions of Church and State have consistently aspired to make art in their own image; and how the rise of art history itself has come to provide the dominant conceptual framework within which artists create, patrons patronize, collectors collect, galleries exhibit, dealers deal and art historians write. The text has been written by a team of 50 specialist authors working under the direction of Professor Martin Kemp, one of the UK's most distinguished art historians. Whilst bringing their own expertise and vision to their sections, each author was also asked to relate their text to a number of unifying themes and issues including written evidence, physical contexts, patronage, viewing and reception techniques, gender and racial issues, centres and peripheries, media and condition, the notion of art and current presentations. Though the coverage of topics focuses on European notions of art and their transplantation and transformation in North America, space is also given to cross-fertilizations with other traditions including the art of Latin America, the Soviet Union, India, Africa and Afro-Caribbean, Australia and Canada. Professor Kemp and his team similarly deal generously with the applied arts and reproductive media such as photography and prints. The result is a vibrant, vigorous and revolutionary account of Western art serving both as an inspirational introduction for the general reader and an authoritative source of reference and guidance for students.

Monographic Series Library of Congress, 1982 The Marvellous and the Monstrous in the Sculpture of Twelfth-century Europe Kirk Ambrose, 2013. Richly illustrated consideration of the meaning of the carvings of non-human beings from centaurs to eagles found in ecclesiastical settings. Representations of monsters and the monstrous are common in medieval art and architecture from the grotesques in the borders of illuminated manuscripts to the symbol of the green man widespread in churches and cathedrals These mysterious depictions are frequently interpreted as embodying or mitigating the fears symptomatic of a dark age This book however considers an alternative scenario in what ways did monsters in twelfth century sculpture help audiences envision perhaps even achieve various ambitions Using examples of Romanesque sculpture from across Europe with a focus on France and northern Portugal the author suggests that medieval representations of monsters could service ideals whether intellectual political religious and social even as they could simultaneously articulate fears he argues that their material presence energizes works of art in paradoxical even contradictory ways In this way Romanesque monsters resist containment within modern interpretive categories and offer testimony to the density and nuance of the medieval imagination KIRK AMBROSE is Associate Professor Chair Department of Art and Art History University of Colorado Boulder
