Ottoman Empire Ekmeleddin Ihsanoglu, 2024-10-28 The aim of these studies is to explore the scientific activity and learning that took place within the Ottoman empire a subject often neglected by both historians of science and of the Ottoman world Professor Ihsanoglu has been a pioneer in this field In several papers he analyses the continuing tradition of Arabic science inherited by the Ottomans together with the contributions made by the conquered Christian and incoming Jewish populations The main focus however is upon the Ottoman reaction to accommodation with and eventual acceptance of the Western scientific tradition Setting this in the context of contemporary cultural and political life the author examines existing institutions of learning and the spread of Western style scientific and learned societies and institutions and charts the adoption of the ideas and methods of Western science and technology Two case studies look in particular at astronomy and at the introduction of aviation Wind, Water, Work Adam Lucas, 2006 This book is the most comprehensive empirical study to date of the social and technical aspects of milling during the ancient and medieval periods Drawing on the latest archaeological evidence and historical studies the book examines the chronological development and technical details of handmills beast mills watermills and windmills from the first millennium BCE to c 1500 It discusses the many and varied uses to which mills were turned in the civilisations of Rome China Islam and Europe and the many types of mill that existed The book also includes comparative regional studies of the social and economic significance of milling and tackles several important historiographical issues such as whether technological stagnation was a characteristic of late Antiquity whether there was an industrial revolution in the European Middle Ages based on waterpower and how contemporary studies in the social shaping of technology can shed light on the study of pre modern technology The Medieval Military Engineer Peter Fraser Purton, 2018 Sheds light on the skills and techniques of the medieval military engineer over a thousand year sweep The results of medieval engineering still surround us cathedrals castles stone bridges irrigation systems However the siege artillery siege towers temporary bridges earthwork emplacements and underground mines used for war have left little trace behind them and there is even less of the engineers themselves the people behind the military engineering achievements The evidence for this neglected group is studied here The author begins by considering the evolution of military technology across centuries and the impact of new technologies in the context of the economic and social developments which made them possible He looks at how military engineers obtained their skills and the possible link with scholastic scientific awareness With the increased survival of government records from the middle ages engineers acquire names and individuals can be identified And the fifteenth century the age of polymaths such as Leonardo da Vinci saw a new type of literate military engineer part of a recognized profession but with its roots in a thousand years of historical development PETER PURTON D Phil Oxon FSA has written extensively on medieval fortifications and siege warfare his publications include the comprehensive two volume history of the medieval siege Boydell 2010 A Bridge to the Sky Claire D. Anderson, 2024 A Caliphal Daedalus examines connections between science and visual culture during the early Islamic scientific revolution of the caliphal age 650 1250 CE It takes as its point of departure the figure of Abbas Ibn Firnas d 887 the most famous scientist and polymath of early Islamic Spain The book considers his scientific activities as these intersected with design and craft culminating in the aeronautics experiment for which he is best known today as these are recounted in the Muqtabis the chronicle compiled by the Cordoban court historian Ibn Hayyan d 1076 It calls into question notions that medieval Islamic artisans and designers were anonymous individuals working outside elite social and intellectual circles The key passages from the chronicle are presented in English translation including the oldest and most authoritative source for the aeronautics experiment The Arabic texts are examined in tandem with the earliest Islamic scientific instruments especially astrolabes and illustrated Arabic treatises of astronomy and engineering preserved in museums and libraries around the globe The book argues for a medieval Islamic court culture in which design and making were central to scientific intellectual pursuits and which may have shaped the culture of the Italian Renaissance Technology, Tradition and Survival Richard Tapper, Keith McLachlan, 2004-11-23 The contributors address the history originality variety and sophistication of traditional science technology and material culture in the Middle East and Central Asia their influence on the history of Europe and the West and the threat posed by modern Western technologies The 'Creed of Science' in Victorian England Roy M. MacLeod, 2024-10-28 The nineteenth century which saw the triumph of the idea of progress and improvement saw also the triumph of science as a political and cultural force In England as science and its methods claimed privilege and space its language acquired the vocabulary of religion The new creed of science embraced what John Tyndall called the scientific movement it was in the language of T H Huxley a militant creed The march of invention the discoveries of chemistry and the wonders of steam and electricity culminated in a crusade against ignorance and unbelief It was a creed that looked to its own apostolic succession from Copernicus Galileo and the martyrs of the scientific revolution Yet it was a creed whose doctrines were divisive and whose convictions resisted Alongside arguments for materialism utility positivism and evolutionary naturalism persisted reservations about the nature of man the role of ethics and the limits of scientific method These essays discuss leading strategists in the scientific movement of late Victorian England At the same time they show how science established served not only the scientific community but also the interests of imperial and colonial powers A Shared

Legacy Emilia Calvo, 2008 Distinguished Figures in Mechanism and Machine Science Marco Ceccarelli, 2009-12-01 This is the second volume of a series of edited books whose aim is to collect contributed papers within a framework that can serve as a collection of persons in MMS Mechanism and Machine Science This is a continuation of the first volume that was published in 2008 again combining very ancient and very recent scholars in order to give not only an encyclopaedic character to this project but also to emphasize the significance of MMS over time This project has the characteristic that the papers illustrate by recognizing persons and their scientific work mainly technical developments in the historical evolution of the fields that today are grouped in MMS Thus emphasis is also given to biographical notes describing efforts and experiences of people who have contributed to the technical achievements whose technical survey is the core of each contributed paper This second volume of the project has been possible thanks to the invited authors who have enthusiastically shared in this initiative and who have spent time and effort in preparing the papers The stand alone papers cover the wide field of the History of Mechanical Engineering with specific focus on MMS I believe that readers will take advantage of the papers in this book and future ones by supplying further satisfaction and motivation for her or his work historical or not
