The book discusses the evolution of human communication systems, the neural control of eye movements in acquired and developmental reading disorders, and the structure in a manual communication system developed without a conventional language model. The text also describes aphasic dissolution and language acquisition VOT distinctions in infants and disruption of written language in aphasia. The linguistic aspects of lexical retrieval disturbances in the posterior fluent aphasias, the neurologic correlates of anomia, and linguistic perseveration are also encompassed. The book provides various articles discussing topics on the articulatory and perceptual characteristics associated with apraxia of speech, prevention of communicative disorders in cleft palate infants, and the relationship between normal phonological acquisition and clinical intervention. Topics on the role of auditory timing in the diagnosis and treatment of speech and language disorders, categorical perception, and the theoretical and clinical implications of speakers' abilities to control the output of their speech mechanism are presented as well. Linguists, speech pathologists, and researchers on language development will find the book very insightful and informative.

This text then explores the grammar of sign language and discusses the linguistic status of natural and contrived sign languages. Other chapters consider the many peculiarities of the lexicon and grammar of sign language and its differences in such respects from oral language. This book discusses as well sign language from the angle of psycholinguistics. The final chapter deals with the educational implications of the use of sign language. This book is a valuable resource for linguists and psycholinguists. Readers who are interested in sign language will also find this book useful.

Glass, 2012-12-06 This volume originates from a NATO Advanced Research Workshop held in Maratea Italy from 8th 15th October 198 Aims and contributions are described at greater length in the Introduction and the following chapters It is hoped that this volume will provide a critical overview of hemispheric specialization in relation to individual differences but one that is not intended to be comprehensive Three contributions on this theme are made by authors who were invited to the Workshop but were unable to participate in it The volume contains a critical appraisal of the differentially specialized functions of left and right human cerebral hemispheres in verbal and visuospatial domains respectively formerly cerebral dominance in relation to individual variation due for example to gender and handedness Critical cross comparison of several methods of assessing hemispheric specialization such as perceptual behavioral clinical neurological electrophysiological and real time methods of assessment of cerebral orientation have been made Individual differences have been considered in relation to statistical concepts in the assessment of cerebral lateralization Some emphasis has been placed on the application of these methods and concepts to psychopathology

From Gesture to Language in Hearing and Deaf Children Virginia Volterra, Carol J. Erting, 2012-12-06 Virginia Volterra and Carol Erting have made an important contribution to knowledge with this selection of studies on language acquisition Collections of studies clustered more or less closely around a topic are plentiful but this one is unique Volterra and Erting had a clear plan in mind when making their selection Taken together the studies make the case that language is inseparable from human interaction and communication and especially in infancy as much a matter of gestural as of vocal behavior The editors have arranged the papers in five coherent sections and written an introduction to each section in addition to the expected general introduction and conclusion No introductory course in child and language development will be complete without this book Presenting successively studies of hearing children acquiring speech languages of deaf children acquiring sign languages of hearing children of deaf parents of deaf children of hearing parents and of hearing children compared with deaf children Volterra and Erting give one a wider than usual view of language acquisition It is a view that would have been impossible not many years ago when the primary languages of deaf adults had received neither recognition nor respect
