Chapman, 2014-12-03 We are all pilgrims just passing through this world There are many routes that we can take as we journey this way Most of them are well marked as to their destination Care should be taken to make certain the route we have chosen will take us where we want to go Some people are content to take the low road through life Their road usually leads to troubles and sorrows They find that when they reach the end of their road they have their reward and there is no hope beyond that Others take the high road through life their hearts are set on eternal things They see the things of this world as temporal and unworthy of their pursuit They see things such as love joy peace and happiness as their reward for this life and everlasting life with Jesus as their eternal reward

The Road to Tenure Erin Marie Furtak, Ian Parker Renga, 2014-04-02 The Road to Tenure offers humorous recollections of the messiness and confusion that fill the days of a pre tenure academic from graduate school through the postdoc and into the assistant professor days The book's three sections roughly map onto the chronology of academic life beginning with graduate school and the job search experience followed by teaching research and service and finally the challenges of family and academic identity The book is not a how to nor does it emphasize lessons learned on the way to tenure Instead the collection earnestly and with good humor captures a significant and meaningful slice of the experience of pursuing academia in contemporary colleges and universities For the doctoral student or newly hired faculty member these essays will provide some comfort with their implicit suggestion that while it's certainly hard work you are not alone
