Delmotte, 2012-12-06 Looking back is a luxury for which scientists normally have little time This XXV Anniversary Symposium however gives the opportunity of reminding us that in Belgium where the risk of developing multiple sclerosis is among the highest in the world a great man to whom we all pay tribute I mean Dr Ludo van Bogaert in 1957 took the initiative in founding the Belgian Research Group for Multiple Sclerosis It may sound immodest but since that time members of the Belgian Research Group happen to have an honourable record of important contributions to MS research quite out of proportion to the financial support they received for it Indeed when compared to the situation in English speaking countries funding of MS research has always been neglected in our country in spite of the fact that in 1958 acting on the advice of the Belgian Research Group the Belgian National MS Society was founded with the specific object of collecting money for research as well as for social care At that time the difficulty in raising funds for research was partly due to the fact that solving the problem of MS appeared almost impossible Scientists could apparently only too slowly improve their ability to prevent and cure the disease Media were indifferent to MS which was considered to have no news value and the public remained uninformed Insights in Multiple Sclerosis and Neuroimmunology: 2021 Hans-Peter Hartung, Robert Weissert, 2023-08-14 Overcoming Multiple Sclerosis George Jelinek, 2010 Presents an overview about multiple sclerosis proposes that lifestyle choices play a large role in its development and offers recommendations for how to manage the disease Pharmacology - E-Book Linda E. Metal Ions in Neurological Systems Wolfgang Linert, Henryk Kozlowski, 2012-08 Metal ions in the brain are a necessity as well as a poison The presence of metal ions in the active sites of biological catalysts or metalloproteins and in the biological functioning of nucleic acids is very well documented and they are required for brain activity On the other hand metals are very effective in generating oxidative stress This effect does not only play a role in immunology but also is the root of practically all neurodegenerative disorders by inducing disease via the death of neurons Managing metal ions in the brain could therefore be an important strategy in the search for therapeutic agents used in the treatment of neurodegenerative diseases This new title gives an overview to key topics in the area of metal ions in the brain It focuses on the role of metal ions in neurological systems by describing their advantageous functions as well as their poisonous features It is therefore of interest for scientists in biochemistry and biophysics physiology toxicology as well as for physicians focused on this topic
