Men Who Lost Singapore, 1938-1942 Ronald McCrum, 2018-04-27 The British military failure against the Japanese invasion of Singapore in 1942 is a well documented and closely examined episode While attention is frequently drawn to the role of the Colonial Governor and his staff during this period the participation of the civil authorities has not been subjected to the same rigorous scrutiny In this book Ronald McCrum undertakes a close examination of the role and the responsibilities of the colonial authorities both in the lead up to the war and during it He contends that the colonial government by pursuing different priorities needlessly created distraction and confusion Additionally the poor even hostile relations that developed between the local government and the British military hierarchy impeded a joint approach to the growing threat and affected the course of this campaign McCrum displays how the tawdry management of civil defence matters led to unnecessary loss of civilian life

Thomas A. Breslin,2001-10-30 Breslin demonstrates that for two millennia states in East Asia Europe and America have successfully used pleasure to protect themselves and advance their interests at a small fraction of the cost of militarized policies Indeed the Chinese demonstrated that pleasure based policies primed a stream of highly profitable foreign trade and bolstered the state Pleasure was feared because it was effective as both an offensive and defensive strategy The colleens of Ireland and the bibis of India showed how inexorably effective pleasure could be in confounding militarily stronger invaders In contrast resorting to violence and pain generally undermined aggressive states Cultural factors have shaped the choice of pleasures used Food centered China has used food as well as sex and tourism as tools in its foreign relations Rome used wine Byzantium precious metals banquets and public spectacles Venice sex money and art England money and education America has used sex money education music and tourism Breslin s provocative text is based on a wide reading of secondary sources and some primary sources as well as a quarter century of teaching the history of foreign relations
