Talking About Literacy Principles And Practices Of Adult Literacy Education:

Talking About Literacy Jane Mace, 2003-08-29 Talking about Literacy re-examines dominant notions of what literacy is and challenges the problem solution reflex to the issue the problem is illiteracy the solution is more literacy Literacy has enormous emotional and political associations and the job of literacy educator often concerns changing attitudes and challenging prejudices whether in the form of publicity strategies counselling new students or in curriculum design In short adult literacy education means not only teaching courses like fresh start basic skills study skills communication skills language support and return to study but also designing strategies to encourage people to see that these courses may meet their own interests and educating them and others to rethink their own negative attitudes to illiteracy The book looks in detail in at five principles put forward by Jane Mace as central to the education of people who often can read but wish they could read better who technically can write but have a desire to do so with more expression and coherence These principles focus on five themes context inquiry authorship equality and community Since it is all too easy for literacy education involving adults who do not have formal qualifications to stop short of teaching techniques for correct writing these principles mean taking seriously a view that adult students are writers as well as readers that they have an entitlement to be read as well as to read others

Reading Circles, Novels and Adult Reading Development Sam Duncan, 2012-02-23 Adult literacy teachers are constantly searching for effective engaging and distinctly adult ways to develop adult emergent reading and for at least the past two hundred years adults have formed themselves into reading circles to read and discuss novels on a weekly or monthly basis Why then are reading circles rarely used or studied in formal adult literacy provision This book explores adult reading development novel reading and reading circles in the context of a wider examination of reading pedagogies and practices in the English speaking world It discusses reading as both an individual and a communal act and investigates the relationship between literature and literacy development practice and pedagogy including a reassessment of the controversial approaches of reading aloud and phonics for adults Sam Duncan reviews a case study of an adult reading circle in a large London further education college and identifies the wider implications for the teaching and learning of adult emergent reading for the use and understanding of reading circles and for how we understand the novel reading experience more broadly
