Tracing Your Pauper Ancestors Robert Burlison, 2009-09-19 A practical and informative guide for family historians interested in researching their British ancestry through social welfare records Many family historians will come across direct links to ancestors who were affected by poverty Yet despite the burgeoning interest in genealogy the history of pauperism and of poor relief has rarely been written about Tracing Your Pauper Ancestors provides a guide to documents and records that family researchers can use to trace their pauper ancestors Author Robert Burlison gives a vivid account of poverty and the poor in the United Kingdom discussing its causes the many forms of charitable relief and the largely repressive Poor Laws He identifies relevant records indicates where they can be found and offers essential advice on how this information can be used to piece together the lives of distant and not so distant relatives Encyclopaedia of the History of Science,

Technology, and Medicine in Non-Western Cultures Helaine Selin, 1997-07-31 The Encyclopaedia fills a gap in both the history of science and in cultural studies. Reference works on other cultures tend either to omit science completely or pay little attention to it and those on the history of science almost always start with the Greeks with perhaps a mention of the Islamic world as a translator of Greek scientific works. The purpose of the Encyclopaedia is to bring together knowledge of many disparate fields in one place and to legitimize the study of other cultures' science. Our aim is not to claim the superiority of other cultures but to engage in a mutual exchange of ideas. The Western academic divisions of science, technology and medicine have been united in the Encyclopaedia because in ancient cultures these disciplines were connected. This work contributes to redressing the balance in the number of reference works devoted to the study of Western science and encourages awareness of cultural diversity. The Encyclopaedia is the first compilation of this sort and it is testimony both to the earlier Eurocentric view of academia as well as to the widened vision of today. There is nothing that crosses disciplinary and geographic boundaries dealing with both scientific and philosophical issues to the extent that this work does. xi

PERSONAL NOTE FROM THE EDITOR Many years ago I taught African history at a secondary school in Central Africa.

Between Encyclopedia and Chorography Anna Boroffka, 2022-10-03 During the early modern period regional specified compendia which combine information on local moral and natural history, towns and fortifications with historiography, antiquarianism, images, series or maps gain a new agency in the production of knowledge. Via literary and aesthetic practices the compilations construct a display of regional specified knowledge. In some cases this display of regional knowledge is presented as a display of a local cultural identity and is linked to early modern practices of comparing and classifying civilizations. At the core of the publication are compendia on the Americas which research has described as chorographies, encyclopedias or more recently cultural encyclopedias. Studies on Asian and European encyclopedias, universal histories and chorographies help to contextualize the American examples in the broader field of an early modern and transcultural knowledge production which inherits and modifies the ancient and medieval tradition.
