in Mike Ashley's four volume study of the science fiction magazines focuses on the turbulent years of the 1970s when the United States emerged from the Vietnam War into an economic crisis. It saw the end of the Apollo moon programme and the start of the ecology movement. This proved to be one of the most complicated periods for the science fiction magazines. Not only were they struggling to survive within the economic climate they also had to cope with the death of the father of modern science fiction John W Campbell Jr while facing new and potentially threatening opposition. The market for science fiction diversified as never before with the growth in new anthologies the emergence of semi professional magazines the explosion of science fiction in college the start of role playing gaming magazines underground and adult comics and with the success of Star Wars media magazines. This volume explores how the traditional science fiction magazines coped with this from the death of Campbell to the start of the major popular science magazine Omni and the first dreams of the Internet.

Fiction and the Sixth Mass Extinction Jonathan Elmore, 2020-04-01 Fiction and the Sixth Mass Extinction is one of the first works to focus specifically on fiction's engagements with human driven extinction. Drawing together a diverse group of scholars and approaches this volume pairs established voices in the field with emerging scholars and traditionally recognized climate fiction cli fi with texts and media typically not associated with Anthropocene fictions. The result is a volume that both engages with and furthers existing work on Anthropocene fiction as well as laying groundwork for the budding subfield of extinction fiction. This volume takes up the collective insistence on the centrality of story to extinction studies. In various and disparate ways each chapter engages with the stories we tell about extinction about the extinction of animal and plant life and about the extinction of human life itself. Answering the call to action of extinction studies these chapters explore what kinds of humanity caused this event and what kinds may live through it what cultural assumptions and values led to this event and which ones could lead out of it what relationships between human life and this planet allowed the sixth mass extinction and what alternative relationships could be possible.
