Women's Life-writing Linda S. Coleman, 1997 The essays in this collection offer readers vivid and varied evidence of the female response to recurring attempts by culture to artificially limit identity along the gendered lines of private and public experience Calling on voices both familiar and little known British and American black and white young and old poor and rich heterosexual and lesbian the essayists explore how women within unique personal and historical conditions used life writing as a means of both self understanding and connection to a community of sympathetic others real or imagined The life writings within this anthology span the modern history of the genre itself with writers drawn from as early as the seventeenth century and as late as the 1990s

Feminist Foremothers in Women's Studies, Psychology, and Mental Health Ellen Cole, Esther D Rothblum, Phyllis Chesler, 2014-05-12 Feminist Foremothers in Women s Studies Psychology and Mental Health is by and about the more recent wave of feminist foremothers those who were awakened in the 1960s and 70s to the realization that something was terribly wrong These are the women who created the fields of feminist therapy feminist psychology and women s mental health as they exist today The 48 women share their life stories in the hope that they will inspire and encourage readers to take their own risks and their own journeys to the outer edges of human possibility Authors write about what led up to their achievements what their accomplishments were and how their lives were consequently changed They describe their personal stages of development in becoming feminists from unawareness to activism to action Some women focus on the painful barriers to success fame and social change others focus on the surprise they experience at how well they and the women s movement have done Some well known feminist foremothers featured include Phyllis Chesler Gloria Steinem Kate Millett Starhawk Judy Chicago Zsuzsanna Emese Budapest Andrea Dworkin Jean Baker Miller Carol Gilligan In Feminist Foremothers in Women s Studies Psychology and Mental Health many of the women see in hindsight how prior projects and ideas and even dreams were the forerunners to their most important work They note the importance of sisterhood and the presence of other women and the loneliness and isolation experienced when they don t exist They note the validation they have received from grassroots feminists in contrast to disbelief from professionals Although these women have been and continue to be looked up to as foremothers they realize how little recognition they ve been given from society at large and how much better off their male counterparts are Some foremothers write about the feeling of being different not meshing with the culture of the time and about challenging the system as an outsider not an insider These are women who had few mentors who had to forge their own way hit the ground running Their stories will challenge readers to press on to continue the work these foremothers so courageously started Throughout the pages of Feminist Foremothers in Women s Studies Psychology and Mental Health runs a sense of excitement and vibrancy of lives lived well of being there during the early years of the women s movement of making sacrifices of taking risks and living to see enormous changes result Throughout these pages too sounds a call not to take these changes for granted but to recognize that feminists rather than arguing over picayune issues or splitting politically correct hairs are battling for the very soul of the world

Maryam Dezhmankhooy,2023-05-16 Most scholarship on the nineteenth and early twentieth century Constitutional Revolution in Iran has focused on the role of two groups intellectuals and the clergy The role of women has largely been ignored despite their widespread participation in the Revolution and existing research on women has mainly focused on their achievements in the realm of women s rights which means that other aspects of women s activism remain un investigated The aim of this book is twofold first it presents one of the very first studies of women s resistance strategies and their resistance to consumerism in Iran second and in relation to the first objective it attempts to demonstrate the biased nature of knowledge production in the studies of women in past societies particularly the role of women in economics This book therefore explores the public role of women and their efforts to revive Iran s economy during and after the Constitutional Revolution Novels of Everyday Life Laurie Langbauer,1999 Laurie Langbauer argues that our worldview is shaped not just by great public events but also by the most overlooked and familiar aspects of common life the everyday This sphere of the everyday has always been a crucial component of the novel but has been ignored by many writers and critics and long associated with the writing of women Focusing on the linked series of novels characteristic of later Victorian and early modern fiction such as Margaret Oliphant s Carlingford Chronicles or the Sherlock Holmes stories she investigates how authors make use of the everyday as a foundation to support their versions of realism What happens when in the series novel or in contemporary theory the everyday becomes a site of contestation and debate Langbauer pursues this question through the novels of Margaret Oliphant Charlotte Yonge Anthony Trollope and Arthur Conan Doyle and in the writings of Dorothy Richardson Virginia Woolf and John Galsworthy as they reflect on their Victorian predecessors She also explores accounts of the everyday in the works of such theorists as Henri Lefebvre Michel de Certeau and Sigmund Freud as well as materialist critics including George Lukacs Max Horkheimer and Theodor Adorno Her work shows how these writers link the series and the everyday in ways that reveal different approaches to comprehending the obscurity that makes up daily life The Poverty of Life-Affirming Work Mechthild Hart,2001-12-30 While society may applaud middle and upper class women who decide to stay home to raise their children there exists a decided abhorrence for single mothers welfare queens who collect public funds but do not work Here Hart challenges traditional notions of welfare mothers by providing first hand accounts of poor urban mothers and revealing the life affirming and moral aspects of their motherwork a form of subsistence work involving many tasks that incorporate the physical psychological emotional and spiritual dimensions of life Though the mothering work these women do is vilified in public discourse as unnecessary and unwanted the author contends that the ethical and epistemological dimensions of life affirming work a key component of motherwork not only structure social political activism but also educational efforts that are oriented towards radical change Concrete experiences of motherwork policy analyses regarding welfare reform efforts oriented towards educational and epistemological border crossings and collective struggles for social change are examined here in a larger theoretical political economic framework Pulling together the many strands of different theoretical fields addressing issues related to critical transformative pedagogy community activism and forms of unpaid work this unique work calls for the unlearning of ways of thinking and feeling which uphold prejudices and life threatening social political hierarchies While the public may sneer at women who choose to accept welfare in order to stay home to raise their children these mothers must continue to perform this invisible work in order that their children may break the cycle of poverty in which they are entrenched The author examines ways in which these mothers organize and carry out educational efforts and political work in the context of extreme poverty and against the harsh criticisms of an unforgiving public Ultimately Hart hopes to convince the public of the inherent importance of motherwork and break down the prejudices that have worked against the urban poor and single mothers
