Technology Transfer In The Developing Countries:

Technology Transfer in the Developing Countries Manas Chatterji, 1990-02-19 The objective of this book is to present the problems and possibilities of transferring technology from the developed countries to the developing countries It presents the conceptual issues legal ramifications empirical testing of mathematical models and case studies of different industries

Information Resources and Technology Transfer Management in Developing Countries Richard Ouma-Onyango, 1997 This book attempts to put information management in the context of technology transfer industrialization and national development The author shows how critical the efficient use of information resources can be in terms of productivity He also examine the costs of poor information management in undermining negotiation the preparation of contingencies and the ability to let go of dead projects To this end case studies of two technology transfer projects in Kenya the National Power Alcohol and National Car Programme are considered over a period of twenty years Technology Transfer Cohen, 2004 Identifying the major factors responsible for effective transfer of information human expertise from an advanced country or a multinational corporation to the developing world this text is aimed at students academics in strategic management planning technology International Technology Transfer to Developing Countries Kamal Saggi, 2004 Bridging the technology gap is an issue faced by most countries but in developing countries the issue is doubly critical not only do they lag further behind relative to other countries but they face more stringent resource constraints Part one of this report identifies the role played by existing policy in trade foreign direct investment and intellectual property rights in facilitating International Technology Transfer ITT Pertinent analysis of the major implications of the report is given The WTO Working Group on Trade and Technology Transfer was established with the aim of encouraging technology transfer to developing countries Part Two of the report outlines the Group s Findings for increasing flows of technology This title provides a thorough overview of the economics of ITT relevant to developing countries and will be invaluable as a reference tool for policy makers trade officials and trade negotiators Strategic Planning in Technology Transfer to Less Developed Countries Christian Madu, 1992-01-27 Despite an avalanche of literature over the last 30 years there has been relatively little written on the role played by strategic planning in the transfer of technology particularly from developed to less developed countries Technology transfer which involves the acquisition of inventive activity by secondary users is conceded vital to socio economic growth but usually it is looked at internationally from a micro perspective Unlike other books Madu s volume looks at technology transfer holistically It examines the advantages of technology transfer and its limitations by viewing recipient nations as systems in which social economic behavioral and political influences converge to help shape technological decisions Only when a systems perspective like this is adopted and technology seen as a strategic variable can technology transfer be understood and successfully implemented says Madu Madu thus identifies the failures of technology transfer as the result of malfunctions in three components of the system technology structure and behavior He analyzes these malfunctions offers ways to repair them and considers technology from the viewpoints of both transferrer and receiver whose missions goals and objectives are often not only disparate but sometimes in conflict He then offers what he calls prescriptive frameworks and guidelines to help implement transfer and to see it as a variable that must be integrated into national development planning Throughout Madu makes it clear that the objective of technology transfer is the maximizing of social welfare Using this overarching premise he is able to evaluate both the benefits and the social costs associated with technology transfer and to develop his prescriptive integrative models Intended for specialists in international finance and development and international business management Madu s book will be of special value to teachers of graduate courses in socio economic development public policy and economics and to policymakers throughout government Foreign Investment and Technology Transfer in Developing Countries Ramesh Chandra Chitrakar,1994 This is a study concerned with two important issues facing developing countries in general and Nepal in particular how to attract foreign investment and how to benefit from it It also compares foreign investment policy in Nepal with that in other developing countries and makes financial and economic analyses of foreign investment and technology transfer firms in Nepal

Technology Transfer and Development Asian Development Bank,1995 Makes recommendations concerning technology transfer and development in Developing Member Countries Examines the technological dimension of the operations of the ADB Covers trends from the early 1960s to 1993 Technology Transfer in the Developing World Frank

Meissner,1988-10-20 The book balances broad brush macro policy issues with the nitty gritty micro project orientation Development professionals and policy makers as well as knowledgeable laypersons who want to make the process mutually beneficial will find much food for thought in this book Development Connections Few developing countries can easily obtain the technology needed to further their socioeconomic growth This monograph offers a behind the scenes analysis of a government private sector venture the Chile Foundation FCh that has been successful in managing the transfer of technology The author profiles numerous FCh projects focusing on the identification selection and management and marketing processes guiding these enterprises He examines decision making trial and error and financing details Meissner also demonstrates how feedback from performance monitoring makes it possible to apply past experiences to ongoing work Finally he suggests what FCh s successes and failures can teach other enterprises attempting similar development

Technology Transfer to Developing Countries Taimi Sitari,1988 Technology Transfer and the Developing Countries Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America. Task Force on Technology Transfer,1977 Technology Transfer and Management in the Developing Countries Harvey W. Wallender,Fund for Multinational Management Education,1979 Making The Link David Kaimowitz,2019-04-11 This book is about International Service for National Agricultural Research s ISNAR study to identify key factors that influenced the effectiveness and efficiency of links between research and technology transfer It recommends ways to improve these links and reflects the progress made till date

International Technology Transfer by Small and Medium-Sized Enterprises Peter J. Buckley, Jaime Campos, Eduardo White, 2016-07-27 The book is the culmination of a research effort which spanned all continents and involved a large number of research teams from both the industrialised and developing countries The book addresses a number of key issues related to technology transfer by small and medium sized enterprises most especially whether such companies are more effective transferors than larger transnational corporations A key aspect of the research was the fact that firms in source and host countries were matched to assure a degree of consistency in the firm coverage and their responses

Technology Transfer to Developing Countries Thomas J. Allen, 2015-08-05 Excerpt from Technology Transfer to Developing Countries The International Technological Gatekeeper A questionnaire was developed and administered to the research personnel of An Foras Taluntais the Irish agricultural research and development organization to study the operation of communications channels for the international transfer of technological information The techniques employed are consistent with those used in previous studies of the purely domestic flow of technological information into American research and development laboratories Results of the study show that the international transfer like domestic transfer takes place in a two step process operating through certain intermediary agents called technological gatekeepers These technological gatekeepers must be well integrated into two information networks an external network of information sources and an internal network of users to whom the information can be delivered Possible strategies for gatekeeper development are discussed About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Technology and Developing Economies Zeinab Karake-Shalhoub, 1990-05-21 This is the first empirical study to compare and contrast the effects of technology transfer to developing countries from the West and from Eastern European countries The author's primary purpose is to compare the effects of the different technologies offered by the two groups the capital intensive technologies of the West and the labor intensive technologies of the Eastern bloc on the economic growth of developing countries as measured by growth in output Using an analytical method based on the production input structure the author is able to quantify the impact on economic growth of technology transfer from different sources and with different characteristics Karake also evaluates the experience of developing countries in importing technologies and identifies the direction pattern and content of those technologies Scholars in international and economic development will find Karake's work an important contribution to the documented information concerning the trade in technology and its relation to economic growth and technological interdependence Following an introductory chapter Karake offers a general discussion of the relationships among development growth and technology She then introduces the econometric time series models and describes the basic study structure The next section examines policies mechanisms and trends in technology transfer in both the West and the East focusing on such issues as the factors and policies which affect technology transfer to the Middle East and patterns of technological exports A chapter devoted to model formulation empirical analysis estimation and results specifies the empirical models used in the study and presents statistical analysis of the appropriate data Finally Karake summarizes the major research findings suggests avenues for further research and assesses the future of technology transfer activity Four appendices containing important supplemental information and a bibliography complete the study
