Telecommunications In Developing Countries The Challenge From Brazil:

Telecommunications in Developing Countries Michael Hobday, 2023-12-22 Telecommunications in Developing Countries 1990 stresses the importance of modern micro electronics based telecommunications for developing economies in providing a basic communications infrastructure for economic and industrial development and the springboard for new information technology activities Although progress in telecommunications has so far been concentrated in the most advanced regions of the world some developing countries can bypass older less efficient forms of telecommunications and go straight to microelectronic technology This book is the first to examine the challenges and difficulties facing developing countries in this field extending existing theories of technology transfer and diffusion Michael Hobday offers an explanation of the forces for change in the telecommunications industry He then examines Brazil s experience in telecommunications from developing the technology and building up a modern infrastructure to controlling multinational suppliers of equipment Dr Hobday explains why Brazil s efforts in this area have succeeded and offers lessons for other developing countries

Telecommunications in Latin America Eli M. Noam, 1998 Bringing together experts on Latin American countries and providing a comprehensive view of what individual countries are doing to build a telecommunications capability Telecommunications in Latin America addresses the complicated economic and policy issues of each country s telecommunications The editor and his staff have skillfully integrated the chapters into a coherent volume keeping the information accessible to non specialists Particular attention is paid to telecommunications as a link in the chain of the regional development process and to the privatization process that has swept across the subcontinent This study will be of interest to students and professionals in the areas of communication international telecommunications companies and country governments in Latin America

World Development Report 1994, 1994 World Development Report 1994 examines the link between infrastructure and development and explores ways in which developing countries can improve both the provision and the quality of infrastructure services In recent decades developing countries have made substantial investments in infrastructure achieving dramatic gains for households and producers by expanding their access to services such as safe water sanitation electric power telecommunications and transport Even more infrastructure investment and expansion are needed in order to extend the reach of services especially to people living in rural areas and to the poor But as this report shows the quantity of investment cannot be the exclusive focus of policy Improving the quality of infrastructure service also is vital Both quantity and quality improvements are essential to modernize and diversify production help countries compete internationally and accommodate rapid urbanization The report identifies the basic cause of poor past performance as inadequate institutional incentives for improving the provision of infrastructure To promote more efficient and responsive service delivery incentives need to be changed through commercial management competition and user involvement Several trends are helping to improve the performance of infrastructure First innovation in technology and in the regulatory management of markets makes more diversity possible in the supply of services Second an evaluation of the role of government is leading to a shift from direct government provision of services to increasing private sector provision and recent experience in many countries with public private partnerships is highlighting new ways to increase efficiency and expand services Third increased concern about social and environmental sustainability has heightened public interest in infrastructure design and performance
