Funology M.A. Blythe, K. Overbeeke, A.F. Monk, P.C. Wright, 2006-03-28 This book reflects the move in Human-Computer Interaction studies from standard usability concerns towards a wider set of problems to do with fun, enjoyment, aesthetics, and the experience of use. Traditionally, HCI has been concerned with work and task-based applications, but as digital technologies proliferate in the home, fun becomes an important issue. There is an established body of knowledge and a range of techniques and methods for making products and interfaces usable, but far less is known about how to make them enjoyable. Perhaps in the future, there will be a body of knowledge and a set of techniques for assessing the pleasure of interaction that will be as thorough as those that currently assess usability. This book is a first step towards that. It brings together a range of researchers from academia and industry to provide answers. Contributors include Alan Dix, Jacob Nielsen, and Mary Beth Rosson, as well as a number of other researchers from academia and industry.
