

The background of the cover is a deep black space filled with small white stars. In the upper left, a black remote control with many buttons is angled towards the center. In the upper right, a portion of a white satellite dish is visible. In the lower left, the curved horizon of the Earth is shown, with blue oceans and green landmasses. The main title 'Television' is written in a large, bold, white sans-serif font with a slight 3D effect. Below it, the subtitle 'An International History' is written in a smaller, italicized white sans-serif font. In the center, a vintage black and silver television set is shown from a three-quarter perspective, appearing to float. The TV has a large screen with a white border and a small, dark, square object in the center. Below the screen are several horizontal silver lines and two circular knobs. The overall composition suggests a global and historical context for the subject of television.

Television An International History:

Television Anthony Smith, 1995 Television long regarded as mere entertainment is now being seriously considered for its significance in all our lives This is the first illustrated international history of our most influential cultural phenomenon Written by a distinguished team of experts it traces the evolution of television from the earliest times to the present assessing its impact in Europe America Japan Australia Africa and the Third World Extensively illustrated and accessibly written Television An International History is a major exploration of the world's most dominant medium Television R. W. Burns, 1998 This book presents a balanced thorough history of television to 1940 considering the factors technical financial and social which influenced and led to the establishment of many of the world's high definition TV broadcasting services This is a major book in the study of history of science technology and media The Birth of British Television Mark Aldridge, 2017-09-16 When the BBC launched the world's first regular high definition television service on 2 November 1936 it was the culmination of decades of technological innovations More than this however the service meant that the principle of television had finally found its place The Birth of British Television A History traces the early history and development of television from the experiments of amateurs to the institutionalised developments that led to the world's first regular high definition television service Author Mark Aldridge provides a clear in depth and accessible introduction for those either exploring the period for the first time or seeking new insights into the beginnings of the industry In tracing the origins and development of television Aldridge focuses on a number of important factors including the attitude of the press towards early television and examines the way that expectations of television changed over time prior to its official launch Utilising new research this illuminating study examines how the aims for a new television service developed and the extent to which content and technology were linked The Birth of British Television approaches this formative period from several perspectives from private individuals to the BBC and government while also examining the broader opinions at the time towards the new medium through press reports and feedback from the general public Also included is an assessment of early programming which helps to offer a new and profound evaluation of the development of early television Mark Aldridge is a Lecturer in Film and TV Studies at Southampton Solent University UK He specialises in British television and both film and television history His previous publications include T is for Television 2008 an analysis of the work of Russell T Davies co written with Andy Murray European Television Discourse in Transition Helen Kelly-Holmes, 1999 As we enter the age of digital television with its potential offering of five hundred channels this volume addresses the implications of the rapidly changing television environment for societies for groups for identities for communication for our sense of time space place for education for language for genres for our whole way of life Modernization, Nation-Building, and Television History Stewart Anderson, Melissa Chakars, 2014-11-20 This innovative collection investigates the ways in which television programs around the world have highlighted modernization and encouraged nation building It is an attempt to catalogue and better understand the contours of this phenomenon which took place as television developed and expanded in different parts of the world between the 1950s and the 1990s From popular science and adult education shows to news magazines and television plays few themes so thoroughly penetrated the small screen for so many years as modernization with television producers and state authorities using television programs to bolster modernization efforts Contributors analyze the hallmarks of these media efforts nation building consumerism and consumer culture the education and integration of citizens and the glorification of the nation s technological achievements The Historian, Television and Television History Graham Roberts, Philip M. Taylor, Nicholas Pronay, 2001 The collected essays in this book arose out of the groundbreaking conference of the International Association of Media and History which brought together key academics and program makers from around the world involved in history and television including Nicholas Pronay Pierre Sorlin and Taylor Downing These essays offer a dialogue between academics and media practitioners that covers archival access analyses of how different TV systems have represented themselves case studies and the future of television Philip M Taylor is a professor of international communications and the director of the Institute of Communications at the University of Leeds Graham Roberts is a lecturer in communications arts at the University of Leeds Transnational Television History Andreas Fickers, Catherine Johnson, 2013-09-13 Although television has developed into a major agent of the transnational and global flow of information and entertainment television historiography and scholarship largely remains a national endeavour partly due to the fact that television has been understood as a tool for the creation of national identity But the breaking of the quasi monopoly of public service broadcasters all over Europe in the 1980s has changed the television landscape and cross border television channels with the help of satellite and the Internet have catapulted the relatively closed television nations into the universe of globalized media channels At least this is the picture painted by the popular meta narratives of European television history Transnational Television History asks us to re evaluate the function of television as a medium of nation building in its formative years and to reassess the historical narrative that insists that European television only became transnational with the emergence of more commercial services and new technologies from the 1980s It also questions some common assumptions in television historiography by offering some alternative perspectives on the complex processes of transnational circulation of television technology professionals programmes and aesthetics This book was originally published as a special issue of Media History A History of Early Television Stephen Herbert, 2004 In the 21st Century broadcast television is an established part of the lives of many millions of people all over the world bringing information and entertainment directly into our homes The pieces in this volume date from 1879 to 1934 and consist of a selection of books articles and news items relating to the first developmental period of television before it became the ubiquitous medium that we know today The selection is English language material only The Television History Book Michele Hilmes, Jason Jacobs, 2021-03-11 Traces the history of broadcasting and the influence developments in broadcasting have had over our social cultural and economic practices Examining the broadcasting traditions of the UK and USA The Television History Book make connections between events and tendencies that both unite and differentiate these national broadcasting traditions The History of Television, 1942 to 2000 Albert Abramson,2007-09-29 Albert Abramson published with McFarland in 1987 a landmark volume titled The History of Television 1880 1941 massive research Library Journal voluminous documentation Choice many striking old photos The TV Collector At last he has produced the follow up volume the reader may be assured there is no other book in any language that is remotely comparable to it Together these two volumes provide the definitive technical history of the medium Upon the development in the mid 1940s of new cameras and picture tubes that made commercial television possible worldwide the medium rose rapidly to prominence Perhaps even more important was the invention of the video tape recorder in 1956 allowing editing re shooting and rebroadcasting This second volume 1942 to 2000 covers these significant developments and much more Chapters are devoted to television during World War II and the postwar era the development of color television Ampex Corporation s contributions television in Europe the change from helical to high band technology solid state cameras the television coverage of Apollo II the rise of electronic journalism television entering the studios the introduction of the camcorder the demise of RCA at the hands of GE the domination of Sony and Matsushita and the future of television in e cinema and the 1080 P24 format The book is heavily illustrated as is the first volume The Columbia History of American Television Gary Richard Edgerton,2007 Richly researched and engaging The Columbia History of American Television tracks the growth of TV into a convergent technology a global industry a social catalyst a viable art form and a complex and dynamic reflection of the American mind and character Renowned media historian Gary R Edgerton follows the technological progress and increasing cultural relevance of television from its prehistory before 1947 to the Network Era 1948 1975 and the Cable Era 1976 1994 He considers the remodeling of television s look and purpose during World War II the gender racial and ethnic components of its early broadcasts and audiences its transformation of postwar America and its function in the political life of the country In conclusion Edgerton takes a discerning look at our current Digital Era and the new forms of instantaneous communication that continue to change America s social political and economic landscape International History of the Recording Industry Pekka Gronow,Ilpo Saunio,1999-07-26 This book explores the fascinating world of the record business its technology the music and the musicians from Edison s phonograph to the compact disc The great artists Caruso Toscanini Louis Armstrong Elvis Presley and their successors all achieved fame through the medium of records and in turn have influenced the recording industry But just as important are the record producers those invisible figures who decide from behind the scenes how a record will sound The history of recording is also the history of record companies the book follows the vicissitudes of the multinational giants without neglecting the small pioneering labels which have brought valuable new talents to the fore Remembering Television Kate Darian-Smith,Sue Turnbull,2013-01-16 This path breaking book extends our knowledge of the social and cultural impacts of television asking new questions about the ways television's technologies and programming have been experienced understood and remembered Television has served as a companion to the historical events that have unfolded in our everyday lives both on and off the screen and its presence is intricately bound up in our memories of the past and actions in the present As this volume demonstrates the influence of television over individual and family behaviours national identity and ideas of global citizenship is complex and wide ranging Drawing upon recent developments in memory studies history media and cultural studies and with particular reference to Australia leading scholars explore the histories of television and how its programs and personalities have been celebrated recalled with nostalgia or simply forgotten Topics covered include the prefiguring of television memories of the struggle for transmission in remote locations the transnational experience of television for immigrant communities the evocation of television programs through spin off products televised war reportage and censorship and the value of unofficial television archives such as YouTube As a whole these essays offer a striking and original examination of the connections between history memory and television in today's world

Television Histories Gary R. Edgerton, Peter C. Rollins, 2021-09-15 From Ken Burns s documentaries to historical dramas such as Roots from A E s Biography series to CNN television has become the primary source for historical information for tens of millions of Americans today Why has television become such a respected authority What falsehoods enter our collective memory as truths How is one to know what is real and what is imagined or ignored by producers directors or writers Gary Edgerton and Peter Rollins have collected a group of essays that answer these and many other questions The contributors examine the full spectrum of historical genres but also institutions such as the History Channel and production histories of such series as The Jack Benny Show which ran for fifteen years The authors explore the tensions between popular history and professional history and the tendency of some academics to declare the past off limits to nonscholars Several of them point to the tendency for television histories to embed current concerns and priorities within the past as in such popular shows as Quantum Leap and Dr Quinn Medicine Woman The result is an insightful portrayal of the power television possesses to influence our culture

An Introduction to Television Studies Jonathan Bignell, 2013 An Introduction to Television Studies is a comprehensive introduction to the field It provides resources for thinking about key aspects and introduces institutional textual cultural economic production and audience centred ways of looking at television

The Impact of International Television Michael G. Elasmr, 2014-04-08 For several decades cultural imperialism has been the dominant paradigm for conceptualizing labeling predicting and explaining the effects of international television It has been used as an unchallenged premise for numerous essays on the topic of imported television influence despite the fact that the assumption of strong cultural influence is not necessarily reflected in the body of research that exists within this field of study In The Impact of International Television A Paradigm Shift editor Michael G Elasmr and his contributors challenge the dominant paradigm of cultural imperialism and offer an alternative paradigm with which to evaluate international or crossborder message influence In this volume Elasmr has collected original research from leading scholars working in the area of crossborder media influence and contributes his own meta analysis to examine what research findings actually show on the influences of crossborder messages The contributions included here illustrate points such as the contentions of cultural imperialism and the context in which its assumptions emerged and developed the complexities of the relationship between exposure to foreign television and its subsequent effects on local audience members the applicability of quantitative methods to a topic commonly tackled using argumentation critical theory and other qualitative approaches and the difficulty of achieving strong and homogenous effects In bringing together the work of independent researchers The Impact of International Television A Paradigm Shift bridges over 40 years of research efforts focused on imported television influence the results of which as a whole challenge the de facto strong and homogenous effects assumed by those who support the paradigm of cultural imperialism The volume sets a theory driven agenda of research and offers an alternative paradigm for the new generation of researchers interested in international media effects As such the volume is intended for scholars researchers and students in international and intercultural communication cross cultural communication mass communication media effects media and society and related areas It will also be of great interest to academics in international relations cross cultural and social psychology intergroup and international relations international public opinion and peace studies
