Television's Imageable Influences Camille O. Cosby,1994-08-17 Camille O Cosby presents a startling examination of how young African Americans are dramatically impacted by the pervasive negative images of their culture that are regularly portrayed on television Dr Cosby shows how American media establishments have engineered a climate of ignorance and disenfranchisement by fostering misinformation and indifference She maintains that a national viewers boycott of programming containing such negative images is the first step towards making the television industry face up to its responsibility as the most powerful communications tool in our nation Contents Statement of the Problem Influence of Perception on Human Behavior The Impact of Television Images on How Individuals View Themselves What Specific Aspects of Self Are Addressed by Particular Television Imageries of African Americans What Possible Influences Do Particular Television Imageries Have on Self Perceptions of Selected Young Adult African Americans What Specific Aspects of Self Are Addressed by Particular Television Imageries of African Americans What Possible Influence Do Particular Television Imageries Have on Self Perceptions of Selected Young Adult African Americans Nielson Media Research Personal History Form and Profiles of Interviewees

Television's Imageable Influences Camille Olivia Cosby,1994-01-01 The worldwide influence of African Americans as a major creative and economic force in Western popular culture is well documented What is less understood is African Americans lack of participation in defining how their cultures and media images are projected We live in an age when self esteem is considered a prerequisite for success How does it feel to view pervasive negative references to your culture on television What impact would it have on your psyche to see your people constantly portrayed as the devoted servant the chicken and watermelon eater the sexual superman the natural born musician or the social delinquent among many other derogatory images Can we afford to tolerate such ignorance and indifference to the conscious denigration of African American cultures or any other culture Television's Imageable Influences Camille O.

Cosby,1994-08-17 We live in an age when self esteem is considered a prerequisite for success How does it feel to view pervasive negative references to your culture on television What impact would it have on your psyche to see your people constantly portrayed as the devoted servant the chicken and watermelon eater the sexual superman the natural born musician or the social delinquent among many other derogatory images Arts & Humanities Citation Index ,1996

Television Images of African-Americans Kiya M. Dowdy,2004 The Influence of Television Imagery on Selected African-American Young Adults' Self-perceptions Camille Olivia Cosby,1992 Black Television Travels Timothy Havens,2013-04-01 Black Television Travels provides a detailed and insightful view of the roots and routes of the televisual representations of blackness on the transnational media landscape By following the circulation of black cultural products and their institutionalized discourses including industry lore taste cultures and the multiple stories of black experiences that have and have not made it onto the small screen Havens complicates discussions of racial representation and exposes possibilities for more expansive representations of blackness while recognizing the limitations of the seemingly liberatory spaces created by globalization Bambi Haggins Associate Professor of Film and Media Studies at Arizona State University A major achievement that makes important contributions to the analysis of race identity global media nation and television production cultures Discussions of race and television are too often constricted within national boundaries yet this fantastic book offers a strong compelling and utterly refreshing corrective Read it assign it use it Jonathan Gray author of Television Entertainment Television Studies and Show Sold Separately Black Television Travels explores the globalization of African American television and the way in which foreign markets programming strategies and viewer preferences have influenced portrayals of African Americans on the small screen Television executives have been notoriously slow to recognize the potential popularity of black characters and themes both at home and abroad As American television brokers increasingly seek revenues abroad their assumptions about saleability and audience perceptions directly influence the global circulation of these programs as well as their content Black Television Travels aims to reclaim the history of African American television circulation in an effort to correct and counteract this predominant industry lore Based on interviews with television executives and programmers from around the world as well as producers in the United States Havens traces the shift from an era when national television networks often blocked African American television from traveling abroad to the transnational post network era of today While globalization has helped to expand diversity in African American television particularly in regard to genre it has also resulted in restrictions such as in the limited portrayal of African American women in favor of attracting young male demographics across racial and national boundaries Havens underscores the importance of examining boardroom politics as part of racial discourse in the late modern era when transnational cultural industries like television are the primary sources for dominant representations of blackness Timothy Havens is an Associate Professor of television and media studies in the Department of Communication Studies the Program in African American Studies and the Program in International Studies at the University of Iowa In the Critical Cultural Communication series The Effects of Eurocentric Advertising on the Self-perceptions of African Americans Rita Clay, 2008 Television in Black and White Crystal Rougeau-Wiley, 2007 Television Portrayals and the Self Perception of Blacks Gbolagunte Akinsola Laosebikan, 1985

The Stereotypes Of African Americans In American TV Series Ah Taouili, 2020-06-20 TV series occupies a large portion of American s time They have extensive experience with TV series before they are exposed to many socializing agents such as schools family and other social interactions with the other In these American TV series African Americans are stereotyped Given the central role of this medium in most American s lives it is crucial to understand its potential effects on a variety of social behavioral and attitudinal outcomes in American society The purpose of this book is to explore the stereotypes of African Americans in the American TV series Motivating our research is the growing need to understand how these TV series influence American society That American s attitudes toward TV series is more influenced by the past of the racial conflict between African Americans and White Americans and it is more sophisticated than previously The book is starting by giving an overview of TV series In this first part I introduced the reader to some characteristics that define TV series then highlight the differences between TV series and other mediums and in the end show some of the social impacts of TV series The second part is entirely about the depiction of African Americans in the American TV series Moving within this central second part to the first section that examines the stereotypes in the American TV series which affect the relationship between these African Americans and the rest of America I tried to answer the how they are depicted question The second section of the second main part is dedicated to exploring the social impacts of these stereotypes on African Americans within the American society The last main part is about the African American TV series In this part I answered the question of what are the efforts of these African TV series to correct the distorted image of African Americans using two primary examples of TV series Julia and the Cosby Show

The Influence of Television on African-American Females as it Relates to Body Image Perception Sharlise Nicole Crump,2001 The Influence of Media Exposure and Colorism on the African American Community Terrence Davis,2022 Research investigating the media perception of African American has found a conflicting relationship between the variables of media exposure self esteem and colorism The present study sought to investigate the possible mediation effect of colorism on the relationship between exposure to Black media and self esteem Participants were presented with images that depicted Black people in current media and answered the four question that appeared beneath Participants then completed a colorism and self esteem questionnaires It was predicted that the total relationship of exposure to Black media and self esteem will be partially mediated by colorism Higher levels of media exposure will be associated with higher ratings of colorism which will be associated with low self esteem African Americans on Television David J. Leonard,Lisa Guerrero,2013-04-23 A comprehensive look at the history of African Americans on television that discusses major trends in black TV and examines the broader social implications of the relationship between race and popular culture as well as race and representation Previous treatments of the history of African Americans in television have largely lacked theoretical analysis of the relationship between representations and social contexts African Americans on Television Race ing for Ratings fills the existing void by supplying fundamental history with critical analyses of the racial politics of television documenting the considerable effect that television has had on popular notions of black identity in America since the inception of television Covering a spectrum of genres comedy drama talk shows television movies variety shows and reality television including shows such as Good Times The Oprah Winfrey Show and Chappelle s Show this insightful work traces a cultural genealogy of African Americans in television Its chronological analysis provides an engaging historical account of how African Americans entered the genre of television and have continued to play a central role in the development of both the medium and the industry The book also tracks the shift in the significance of African Americans in the television market and industry and the changing but enduring face of stereotypes and racism in American television culture      "African-American Students' Perceptions of Africans from Television Use" Vanessa A. Nichols, 1993      Effects of Stereotypical Television Portrayals of African-Americans on Person Perception T. E. Ford,      Technicolored Ann DuCille, 2018 From early sitcoms such as I Love Lucy to contemporary prime time dramas like Scandal and How to Get Away with Murder African Americans on television have too often been asked to portray tired stereotypes of blacks as villains vixens victims and disposable minorities In this book black feminist critic Ann duCille combines cultural critique with personal reflections on growing up with the new medium of TV to examine how televisual representations of African Americans have changed over the last sixty years Whether explaining how watching Shirley Temple led her to question her own self worth or how televisual representation functions as a form of racial profiling the author traces the real life social and political repercussions of the portrayal and presence of African Americans on television Neither a conventional memoir nor a traditional media study this book offers one lifelong television watcher s careful personal and timely analysis of how television continues to shape notions of race in the American imagination

Watching Race Herman Gray, 1995 Examines the cultural politics of television and race In the late 1980s and early 1990s television representations of African Americans exploded on the small screen Why has this occurred and what relation do these shows have to society s idea of blackness How do these shows relate to earlier television series featuring African Americans Herman Gray s Watching Race now available in paperback for the first time offers a new look at the changing representations of African Americans on television Starting with the portrayal of blacks on series such as The Jack Benny Show and Amos n Andy Gray details the ongoing dialogue between television representations and cultural discourse to show how the meaning of blackness has changed through the years of the TV era Drawing on analyses of The Cosby Show Frank s Place In Living Color and Roc as well as music videos news coverage and advertising Watching Race examines how the political stakes cultural perspectives and social locations of key cultural and social formations influence the representation of blackness in television Absorbing Offers incisive analysis of the important often fierce battles being waged in the black and white representational landscape of commercial television Patricia Williams      The Self-perception of African-American Pre-adolescents as it Relates to Their Career Aspirations Vonda W.
