make uncertain dominant views of the nature of perception Considering the ways in which literary texts intersect with and diverge from scientific epistemological and philosophical perspectives these essays explore a wide variety of literary moments of sensation including the interspecies exchange of a look between a swan and a young Indigenous Australian girl the sound of bees as captured in an early modern poem the noxious smell of the Great Stink that recurs in the Victorian novel the taste of an eggplant registered in a poetic performance tactile gestures in medieval romance and the representation of a world in which the interdependence of human beings with the purple hibiscus plant is experienced through all five senses The collection builds upon and breaks new ground in the field of sensory studies focusing on what makes literature especially suitable to engaging with contributing to and challenging our perennial understandings of the senses Changing English David Graddol, Dick Leith, Joan Swann, Martin Rhys, Julia Gillen, 2020-07-24 Changing English examines the history of English from its origins in the fifth century to the present day It focuses on the radical changes that have taken place in the structure of English over a millennium and a half detailing the influences of migration colonialism and many other historical social and cultural phenomena Expert authors illustrate and analyze dialects accents and the shifting styles of individual speakers as they respond to changing circumstances The reader is introduced to many key debates relating to the English language illustrated by specific examples of data in context Including key material retained from the earlier bestselling book English History Diversity and Change this edition has been thoroughly reorganized and updated with entirely new material Changing English explains basic concepts easily located through a comprehensive index includes contributions by experts in the field such as David Crystal David Graddol Dick Leith Lynda Mugglestone and Joan Swann contains a range of source material and commissioned readings to supplement chapters Changing English makes an essential contribution to the field of English language studies The Uncanny in Language, Literature and Culture Sarah Stollman, Charlie Jorge, Catherine Morris, 2024-09-09 In his attempts to define the uncanny Sigmund Freud asserted that the concept is undoubtedly related to what is frightening to what arouses dread and horror Yet the sensation is prompted simultaneously by something familiar establishing a sense of insecurity within the domestic even within the walls of one's own home This disturbance of the familiar further unsettles the sense of oneself A resultant perturbed relationship between a person and their familiar world the troubled sense of home and self certainty can be the result of a traumatic experience of loss and of unresolved pasts resurfacing in the present Memory traces are revised and interwoven with fresh experiences producing an uncanny effect As an externalization of consciousness the uncanny becomes a meta concept for modernity with its disintegration of time space and self The papers in this book seek to explore the representations of the uncanny in language literature and culture applying the origins of the concept to a range of ideas and works The Language Web Jean Aitchison, 1997 Language is like a vast spider's web In this volume Jean Aitchison explores the different facets of this web She begins with the cobweb of false worries which surrounds language She then discusses how language evolved in the human species how children acquire it and how educated English speakers remember 50 000 or more words Finally she argues that people are right to be concerned about language though not in the ways traditionally assumed This is the text of the 1996 BBC Reith lectures slightly revised for publication with illustrations and full references and an afterword which looks at the reception of the lectures

Dialect Change Peter Auer, Frans Hinskens, Paul Kerswill, 2005-09-22 Dialects are constantly changing and due to increased mobility in more recent years European dialects have levelled making it difficult to distinguish a native of Reading from a native of London or a native of Bonn from a native of Cologne This comprehensive study brings together a team of leading scholars to explore all aspects of recent dialect change in particular dialect convergence and divergence Drawing on examples from a wide range of European countries as well as areas where European languages have been transplanted they examine a range of issues relating to dialect contact and isolation and show how sociolinguistic conditions differ hugely between and within European countries Each specially commissioned chapter is based on original research giving an overview of work on that particular area and presenting case studies to illustrate the issues discussed Dialect Change will be welcomed by all those interested in sociolinguistics dialectology the relevance of language variation to formal linguistic theories and European languages

Norms and the Study of Language in Social Life Janus Mortensen, Kamilla Kraft, 2022-03-21 Sociolinguistics and the social sciences more generally tend to take an interest in norms as central to social life The importance of norms is easily discernible in the sociolinguistic canon for instance in Labov s definition of the speech community as participation in a set of shared norms and Hymes concepts of norms of interaction and norms of interpretation Yet while the notion of norms may play a central role in sociolinguistic theory there is little explicit theoretical work around the notion of norms itself within the discipline Instead norms tend to be treated as conceptual primes convenient building blocks ready made for sociolinguistic theorizing rather than theoretical constructs in need of reflexive attention The aim of this book is to assess and advance current understandings of norms as a theoretical construct and empirical object of research in the study of language in social life The contributors approach the topic from a range of complementary disciplinary perspectives including sociolinguistics linguistic anthropology EM CA socio cognitive linguistics and pragmatics to provide a multifaceted view of norms as a central concept in the study of language in social life
