

Two 'Tarnham' Spy Thrillers A Matter of Diplomacy

A fascinating unravelling of diplomatic intrigue in the post-Philly world is given day Adams. The political and thriller elements are beautifully fused into a highly personal story of the consequences of a decision on those left behind—particularly of the defector Tarnham's interaction with Elton.

'The last years of sustained dramatic writing I have read since the climax of Nigel Barker's The Small Back Room.' Nottingham Examiner.

The Powder Train

A tautly written, fast-moving novel featuring some of the principal characters in A Matter of Diplomacy. Secret agent George Mado, womaniser and drinker extraordinary, is given his last chance—to ignore the fact of modest power so that it burns right into the heart of Russia.

'One of today's best writers on diplomatic intrigue.' Birmingham Evening Mail.

ANDREW WARREN

This Time Next October

George Parker, a brilliant construction engineer, arrives back in England after two years abroad to find the country torn by Neutralist riots. Immediately before going, he had been employed on constructing a super-secrecy bomb-proof headquarters underneath Berkeley Square. Now, on the first day he is back—and the action of this novel, fast-moving story takes place in a single day—he discovers that 'his' project has been expanded in his absence into a vast underground city capable of accommodating a survival population of... whom? He does not know the real purpose to which his project will be put, but he is deeply suspicious. The events in This Time Next October are perfectly plausible in the context of our times and leave the reader pondering that perhaps—perhaps—it could happen here....
